Vanguard Rises 4 Feet, Falls Flat and Explodes

RALPH McGILL

The Egghead Vindicated

Friday's failure of the Vanguard missile emphatically exposes the Achilles heel of Secretary Dulles' NATO and Middle East policy.

As of now our government is trying to interest the Japanese in providing themselves with a small but efficient fleet of long-range bombers, some sub chasers, and a tiny but mobile army with firepower.

And as of now Mr. Moto is saying, "So sorry." This little story illustrates the attempt of our government to reverse much of its former foreign policy. It also reflects the plan which will be further expanded at the December NATO meeting to persuade our allies to assume more of the responsibility and burden of defense against possible Communist aggression.

And this brings us to Adlai Stevenson.

Mr. Stevenson is in the position of having had to wait, not years but only a few months, to be vindicated by history. The American people twice turned him down. They did not listen to what he said—namely, that the administration foreign policy was an impossible one because it was based on military power and the threat of atomic retaliation. Mr. Stevenson said it was a policy which could do nothing save fail and do us great harm. He also suggested that the domestic policy was an unrealistic one which was not preparing the people to face the facts.

All this has come true . . . within the span of six months.

Sputnikitis

The U.S. policy for Asia is dead.

What life there was in it was killed by the Asian disease of sputnikitis. The SEATO (Southeast Asia Treaty Organization) some time ago changed from a military pact to one offering economic aid. But it, because of the original plan, is suspect.

The plain fact is that the unrealistic policy of "neutralism" into which the Asian nations have sought escape is becoming more and more fixed. That this makes them more vulnerable to Communist infiltration and political aggression is, of course, true. But they do not find the Russians or the Chinese as suspect as the United States, Britain and France. This is quite understandable, if somewhat paradoxical. The Russians and the Chinese had been backward peasant peoples without any extensive colonial holdings. They looked more kindly upon the Chinese than the "Big Noses" or Russians because the people of China are Asians. Russia is both Asian and European.

NATO had validity because the European nations could see its meaning and possibilities. But after the atomic bomb ceased to be a monopoly and when the Russians vaulted ahead in the field of missiles, the NATO nations were brought face to face with a pressure from their Socialist parties for more of a neutralist attitude.

A Pact

SEATO is a pact against China—as NATO is organized as a shield against a Communist attack from East Germany. But the threat is one and the same.

Our position is, therefore, an almost impossible one. Our aid, unless it has political strings attached, is exploited by the governments of SEATO to make the governing class richer and the poor class poorer—and more resentful against "democracy." But paradoxically, the ruling class, or the Communists, can successfully raise a cry of "colonialism" if we do impose controls.

There must be foreign aid. It is cheaper than war.

There are millions of persons in Asia who are devoted to the principles of democratic government.

The GOP seems to be still a captive of the China lobby which maintains the fiction that Chiang Kai-shek is about to invade the mainland. It still relies on a military-type treaty as policy. The President's great dilemma is that the Secretary of State, faced with a new world situation, was not resilient or resourceful enough to create a new policy. Mr. Dulles has proved inadequate.

Adlai Stevenson does not believe the administration has taken the necessary or proper steps to meet the Communist pressure from China and Russia. The eggheads have been vindicated. But whether the State Department can be resilient or courageous enough remains to be seen—and in doubt.

TRAGEDY MARS CHRISTMASTIME IN VILLA RICA

Funeral Wreath Hangs on Yule-Decorated Shop Door

Stricken City Mourns, But Cleans Up Debris

By FRANK WELLS
Constitution Staff Writer

VILLA RICA, Dec. 6—This blast-shocked town wore a mourning band Friday for 12 victims of a gas explosion here, but assuaged its grief in the age-old remedy of keeping busy.

Workers by the score—nearly all volunteers—continued clearing away the wreckage of four stores and a dentist's office which weer destroyed by a gas explosion Thursday at about 10:45 a.m.

As the last debris was being removed from the site of the four stores, other volunteers were sorting out merchandise which had been recovered from the buildings.

MIXUP EXPLAINED

Villa Ricans were puzzled by some tallies kept of the bodies removed from the wrecked buildings. All funeral homes in the area said late Thursday night that all bodies in their hands had been identified, and that the total amounted to 12.

However, the distance between some of the funeral homes and the almost complete lack of communication facilities out of Villa Rica after the blast kept officials in Villa Rica from knowing that certain bodies had been identified. When relatives notified officials that a body had been identified, the name was added to the list of known dead, but evidently not subtracted from the unidentified list, one official said.

One insurance agent in Villa Rica said that the buildings were insured for more than $200,000. Other estimates said that the monetary loss would far exceed that sum.

"There is just no way of knowing right now how much merchandise was destroyed," Mayor C. M. Griffin said Friday. "It will

Hartsfield Hints Delay On Fluoride

By JAMES SHEPPARD

Mayor William B. Hartsfield Friday night indicated action on fluoridating Atlanta's water supply would be deferred.

The Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce, which has championed fluoridation here, called the mayor's stand an "about-face."

AMA FAVORS IT

Jaycee spokesmen contend the mayor has reversed himself in a promise made to the organization in a letter March 15, 1957. The letter, released Friday by Dr. Daniel B. Kahle, chairman of the Junior Chamber's public health committee, pledged the mayor to follow recommendations of an American Medical Assn. committee conducting a fluoridation study.

The AMA has reendorsed its 1951 resolution favoring fluoridation. It voiced the researchers' opinion that "fluoridation of public water supplies is a safe and practical method of reducing the incidence of dental caries (decay) during childhood."

"STALLING"

The mayor's letter, in part:

". . . If this committee conducts an unbiased investigation of both sides of this controversy and recommends the fluoridation of public water supplies or validates their previous recommendation to this effect, it shall be my policy as mayor to follow this recommendation."

The mayor's postponement of action was viewed by Dr. Kahle as "unjustified stalling."

Hartsfield said his stand was "independent," that he neither favored nor opposed fluoridation. He said he needs "time to study the report's contents from overy angle."

Three steps must be taken to implement fluoridation in Fulton County, explained Dr. T. F. Sel-

Democrats Call Failure Grievous

By WILMOT HERCHER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—The widely publicized failure of the Vanguard satellite rocket was mourned by Democratic members of Congress today as a "grievous" and "humiliating" blow to American prestige.

It led to immediate suggestions from senators and scientists that the next U.S attempt to launch an earth satellite be made in secret.

Washington reaction to the dud at Cape Canaveral, Fla., ranged from disappointment and dismay to the philosophic attitude that setbacks must be expected in such an ambitious project.

PUBLICITY HIT

There was sharp criticism in some quarters of the "publicity" surrounding the launching effort.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) demanded to know "who ordered the enormous publicity buildup."

"As an American," he said, "I am saddened and humiliated by the cheap and gaudy manner in which the administration has gone about the business of trying a last minute rush to launch a satellite—and failing — after deliberately stretching out the program for economy reasons.

"Who decided that the chances of a successful launching were good enough to risk making our

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 — The United States and Britain have agreed to establish four squadrons of intermediate range ballistic missiles in the British Isles.

The cost of building the sites is estimated at $84,000,000 to be borne largely by Britain. Three of the squadrons will be British, and the fourth will be under the U.S. Air Force.

This became known today as Secretary of Defense McElroy left by plane for talks in London and a visit to U.S. troops in Germany. He is due in Paris Thursday to be on hand for the conference of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

VANGUARD BLOWS UP AFTER PROTRACTED FAILURE TO GET OFF

Ball of Fire Mushrooms Through Launching Devices at Cape Canaveral

Russia Charges U.S. Keeps Part of Rocket

MOSCOW, Dec. 6 (AP)—Nikita Khruschev declared tonight part of the carrier rocket of Sputnik I fell in the United States Sunday and the Americans won't give it back.

The Communist party secretary emphasized he meant the United States itself, not simply the American continent.

"We relied on them, trusting in their decency, but they did not live up to our trust," he remarked to correspondents at a Finnish Embassy reception. "If an American Sputnik ever falls on Soviet territory we will return it promptly to the United States."

DENIAL BY U.S.

U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson was informed of Khrushchev's charge and said: "This is the first I have heard of it."

(In Washington, a State Department spokesman disclaimed any knowledge of the rocket hitting U.S. soil. A spokesman for the Vanguard satellite project said there was no evidence the fragment hit the United States.

(The State Department spokesman said the department had seen press reports a fragment may have landed in Alaska or Germany. This referred to a U.S. Army statement at Fairbanks, Alaska, saying the rocket was believed to have fallen Sunday at Ft. Greely reservation, 100 miles south of Fairbanks. But nothing was reported found. Witnesses also reported seeing flaming objects falling over the weekend in Maine and Montana.)

IN SOUTH PACIFIC

(Dr. Fred L. Whipple, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass. has said the rocket probably plunged to its death Saturday night, possibly in the South Pacific far from land.)

Khrushchev said the Soviet government will make an official announcement that the fragment landed in the United States and then will ask the United States to return it. Correspondents asked Khrushchev if he was joking.

"I am absolutely serious," he said. "We know it fell on the United States."

Until just before Khrushchev's startling accusation, Moscow radio had been insisting the rocket still was whizzing around the earth despite Western scientists' belief it had disintegrated.

Vanguard's Epitaph--- In Calypso

LONDON, Dec. 6 (UP) — A British Broadcasting Corporation television program tonight carried a biting calypso song on the failure of the American earth satellite launching.

Calypso singer Rory McEwen, appearing on the BBC sang this song to guitar accompaniment:

"From America comes the significant thought

"Their own little Sputnik will not go off.

"Oh, from America comes the significant thought

"Their own little Sputnik won't go off.

"They've been pressing the button for a month or more.

"But they can't get the blighter off the floor.

"I suspect there's no satellite at all

"It's only another lost golf ball."

Vanguard's Bust Dims U.S. Dazzle

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—The U.S. failure to launch an earth satellite today dealt a stunning new blow to American prestige in the world. This one came in the final stage of buildup for the Allied summit conference at Paris, where American leadership faces severe tests.

DIPLOMATS WONDER

Diplomats wondered whether the incident did not make it more urgent than ever for President Eisenhower to make the Paris trip if he is at all able physically to do so.

News from Cape Canaveral, Fla., about the rocket failure hit the State Department with a sickening thud. Officials had been watching for two or three days the ridicule in Europe of the satellite test-launching.

The best they could hope for was that even with a moon that was too little and too late by comparison with Russia's big orbiting objects, the United States would at least show itself in the running. The explosion of the rocket blasted that hope for the time being.

PUBLIC MISFIRE

It was a misfire that could hardly have occurred under worse circumstances. By contrast with almost everything else that the United States has done in the rocket field. the Vanguard project is nonsecret. Thus everything about the preparations for the launching was being disclosed as the affair proceeded. This heightened dramatic tension.

Actually, as officials here see

Tiny Moon Sends Beep From Sand

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP) — The Vanguard test rocket —with U.S. hopes for some recaptured prestige aboard — barely struggled off the ground today, then fell back and exploded.

Instantly destroyed were the greater part of the 72-foot-long vehicle and virtually all prospects of putting an American satellite into an orbit around the earth in 1957.

The flames and smoke of the bitter ending of Vanguard TV-3—test vehicle number 3 — startled and saddened thousands of watchers on Florida beaches, and other hundreds in the launching area. None of the 42 persons in the immediate area was hurt.

SATELLITE SURVIVES

Oddly, too, the 6.4-inch aluminum sphere which was to have been America's partial answer to Russia's space challenge survived the crash — and kept sending out its radio signals all the while.

J. Paul Walsh, deputy director of the Vanguard project — the U.S. satellite launching program —said the 3¼-pound ball was found in the area, still emiting its tracking voice despite the considerable damage from the shock.

Walsh, who was standing in a hangar in direct view of the launching stand — but a safe distance away — said the rocket actually rose two to four feet into the air.

FINISHES COUNTDOWN

Walsh said he was on the telephone to his boss, Dr. John Hagen in Washington, D.C., at the time, and had just finished giving the countdown.

"We had counted down to zero, then said 'fire' and 'first ignition'" Walsh recalled at a 90-minute news conference two hours after the failure.

"Up to then everything had worked perfectly.

"The rocket started to leave the stand, and in two seconds of burning rose two to four feet. We won't know precisely how far until the engineers study their film.

SOMETHING HAPPENS

"Then something happened—we don't really know what.

"We lost thrust, somehow. The

Georgia U. Asks $6 Million as A Housing Loan

Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—The University of Georgia has applied to the community facilities administration for a housing loan of $6,000,000, the Housing and Home Finance Agency announced today.

In addition, the Georgia Teachers College at Statesboro has applied for a $1,125,000 loan, the agency disclosed. South Georgia College is seeking a $360,000 loan, and West Georgia College at Carrollton a $480,000 loan.

The Georgia institutions were among 27 colleges, universities and five hospitals across the nation applying during November for housing loans totaling $27,726,000.

Move Seen to Restore Exemption Of U.S. Income Taxes from State's

There is going to be a "concerted move" in the January session of the Legislature, to restore exemption of federal income taxes from Georgia income taxes, State Sen. Charlie Brown of Atlanta predicted Friday.

Two other Fulton County legislators, Reps. Wilson Brooks and J. Ralph McClelland Jr., said at the last of two delegation legislative hearings that such a bill will "pass the House" if it can ever be gotten out of committee.

The statements came after J. B. Pruitt, a railroad conductor and former labor leader, appeared to ask that the delegation again work for reinstatement of the exemption so citizens won't have to pay taxes "on money they never see."

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Brown recalled the Brooks Bill introduced in the last legislative session to restore exemption of federal taxes from state income taxes was killed by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The committee was headed by Rep. Edgar Blalock of Clayton County, a Griffin stalwart.

The 52nd District senator said such a bill also would face opposition from Gov. Griffin because the governor not only will be seeking to "hold the line" on expenditures, but also to see that the state doesn't lose any revenue it is now getting.

Sen. Brown asserted that "more citizens are interested" in this bill than any other matter, unless it is making county and City of Atlanta pension plans uniform. This is a matter which took up much of the two-day legislative hearings.

The delegation also has heard pleas from citizens for continued action to allow neighborhood registration of voters (a bill to do this is still hanging in the House State of Republic Committee), and to change the date of Atlanta's primary or do away with it altogether.

The latter matter was one that caused a split in the local delegation last session when Rep. M. M. (Muggsy) Smith refused to go along with a bill introduced by Brown to move the primary from May to October.

Ban of Mixed Drinks Asked by Ald. Gilliam

The 1957 Christmas may be a drier one in Atlanta. Ald. Ed. A. Gilliam, chairman of the aldemanic board's police committee, said Friday he will ask the next Wednesday session of the police committee to instruct Police Chief Jenkins and the police department to enforce a ruling which would bar mixed drink sales at 65 Atlanta hotels, restaurants and clubs.

Gilliam's decision followed an opinion by Associate City Attorney Henry L. Bowden that the "selling of mixed drinks in any guise is illegal in Georgia."

Bowden's opinion was based on a case carried to the Court of Appeals from Columbus in which the court outlawed mixed drinks. The decision has been appealed to the state Supreme Court, it was said, and there has been no final adjudication.

Police Chief Jenkins said "it is an established policy of this department to enforce all laws against all offenders."

"There have been divergent views about provisions of the state law permitting fortifying wines," Jenkins said. "We will carry out instructions given by the police committee or the mayor and the board of aldermen.

Bowden pointed out that the law specifically bars the sale of liquor in smaller quantities than one-half unbroken pints. He held that the Columbus decision is definite in prohibiting sales to the public in which broken quantities of whisky

Indonesia Begins Chasing Out Most of 46,000 Dutch Citizens

JAKARTA, Dec. 6 (AP)—Indonesia began driving out the Dutch rearguard which held on after colonial days and ran the nation's rich oil, rubber and business empires.

With a show of grim determination in its pressure campaign to take over the jungles of West New Guinea, the Indonesian government ordered The Netherlands government to begin immediate evacuation of most of the 46,000 Dutch citizens here. One source said all would be expelled except skilled technicians. Many are Indonesian-born Eurasians who have never been elsewhere.

Seizure of Dutch banks, plantations, factories, clubs and businesses by Communist-led unions and workers gathered force throughout the 3,000 islands.

(The Dutch government called for an emergency meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to discuss these developments. The British government warned Indonesia that it is endangering its own interests. The United States was reported to have expressed concern to the Foreign Ministry in Jakarta over the ezpulsion order.)

ORDERED TO LEAVE

The 28 Dutch employes of KLM Airlines and their families—about 100 persons—were the first ordered to leave. Justice Minister Gustaaf Manegkom told them to pack up as soon as possible. He said it would be all right with him if all the Dutch were gone within three days but added that he knew it was impossible.

The KLM people faced the prospect of taking only hand baggage, leaving behind houses, cars and furniture. The order meant abandoning some of KLM's Constellation planes and its airport installations. KLM's Transaera Hotel was transferred to Garuda Airways, formerly a joint KLM-Indonesian company.

The Indonesians applied pressure from all angles on the Dutch to give up undeveloped West New Guinea and its 700,000 Papuan natives. The Dutch still rule the western half of that island, 1,500 miles east of Java, though they granted independence to Indonesia in 1949.

MATTER OF TIME

Information Minister Sudibjo told a news conference it is only a matter of time until Dutch-Indonesian diplomatic relations are broken. The Netherlands has been asked to close seven of its eight consulates.

The Indonesian Embassy in The Netherlands has been instructed to evacuate the 5,000 Indonesians in that country, many of them students on Dutch scholarships.

Sudibjo said Dutch-Indonesian trade relations will be cut immediately, and Indonesian market centers shifted from the Netherlands to other countries. Dutch banks and firms have been handling most of Indonesia's overseas marketing.

He left vague the eventual fate of the billion-dollar Dutch investment here. Businesses now being seized by the workers, he said, will be taken under government supervision automatically and the question of whether they are to be nationalized will be discussed later.

SHIPS NATIONALIZED

The government already has announced the nationalization of the big KPM shipping company's port and harbor facilities, though not the company itself.

Military authorities ordered the detention of 11 Dutch ships at Jakarta, two at Surabaya, and two in Sumatran ports. Sudibjo said Indonesian armed guards on all Dutch ships will make sure they do not sail to foreign ports.

Dutch nationals kept on payrolls of Indonesian-run properties will risk imprisonment under stage of siege regulations if they refuse to work.

East Quiet, U.N. Chief Returning

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Dec. 6 — Dag Hammarskjold left for New York today after quickly cooling a new rash of Israeli-Arab hot spots menacing the peace of the Middle East.

The U.N. secretary general left his New York office just a week ago when a convoy wrangle threatened to erupt in shooting between Israel and Jordan. Angry clashes also echoed on the Israeli-Syrian border.

The flying peacemaker stopped off here for lunch with Foreign Minister Charles Malik. He told Malik of agreements reached on his five-day tour of Jordan, Israel and Syria.

Hammarskjold won Jordan's agreement to allow Israeli supply convoys to resume passage through Jordanian territory to Israeli-held Mt. Scopus at the eastern edge of Jerusalem.

He also reached agreement in principle with Syria that the authority of the U.N. Palestine truce organization and the Mixed Armistice Commission should be strengthened. Thus he hopes more effective application of the general armistice agreement between Syria and Israel will be possible.

These two achievements were announced in joint communiques after Hammarskjold's negotiations in Amman, Jerusalem and Damascus.

There was no reference, however, to the question of U.S. Marine Col. Byron V. Leary, acting chief of staff of the U.N. truce body. Jordan charged Leary snowed bias toward Israel and declared him unacceptable.

Italy Asks U.S. in Fund For Mideast

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Italy today proposed that the United States join 17 European countries in creating a special fund to develop Middle East and Mediterranean countries.

Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella made the proposal to Secretary of State Dulles at a meeting on new moves to cope with Russia's stepped-up challenge to the free world.

Pella suggested the United States contribute to this fund all money that European countries are due to repay in the next few years on U.S. Marshall Plan assistance loans.

The European countries would contribute an amount equal to 20 per cent of such repayments as their share in the plan.

4-Legged Countdown Ran Second at Least

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 6 (AP)—A "hunch" horse with a missiletype name also misfired today.

Horse players with an eye on today's Vanguard rocket test in Florida, where a "count down" technique preceded the firing, spotted "Count Down" entered in the third race at Pimlico.

Shortly after the Vanguard rocket exploded, "Count Down" ran second.

TRUCKER EYES ALLEGED ASSAILANT

Eugene Evans (R) Looks Toward "Corky" Ellis During Probe

JUST A BIG JOKE

Rackets Probe Told Of Shooting, Beating

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—The Senate Rackets Investigating Committee today heard testimony that a Teamsters Union business agent was sent out to shoot up a couple of nonunion truck drivers but wound up being accidentally shot himself.

The senators never did learn exactly how "Hard-hearing Smitty," known more formally as W. A. Smith, came to be shot in the left arm. After he got out of the Hospital, in Maryville, Tenn., Smith was inclined to treat the incident as a joke.

Neither of the nonunion truckers, D. Robertson and Tom Copeland, was injured when they were fired on by an unidentified gunman while driving their rigs along a Tennessee highway the night of June 12, 1955.

In other testimony before the committee:

AUTO DYNAMITED

1. Robert Caldwell, a Knoxville truck driver, said his own automobile was dynamited — "blown all to pieces" — after he had refused to join the Teamsters Union. Caldwell said the blast, which occurred in front of his home the night of Oct. 26, 1956, knocked his pregnant wife and their two children out of their beds. He was attending a ball game himself.

2. Eugene Evans, a former member of Teamsters Local 621 in Knoxville, told of being "clobbered" by a man who kicked him in the face and ribs after he had difficulties with leaders of the union local in 1955. Evans identified William Leon Ellis, husky former Navy boxer known in Nashville as "Corky" Ellis, as the man who clobbered him.

STRONG-ARM PICKET

3. Ellis, called to the stand, acknowledged he had been hired as "an organizer" and strong-arm picket but refused to say whether he ever had seen Evans or beaten him up. Ellis invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to answer dozens of questions on the ground his testimony might "incriminate me."

4. Detective John T. Reynolds of the Tennessee Bureau of Criminal Identification, when questioned about the Smith shooting, said, "We more or less keep out of union trouble as much as possible."

Part of the story about the Smith incident came from Mrs. Lola Freels, who said she was "terminated" in November 1956 as secretary-bookkeeper for the Knoxville Teamsters local.

Mrs. Freels recounted that Smith was wounded accidentally while shooting at truckers. She said he had been brought to Knoxville from Nashville for the shootings by W. J. Reynolds, president, and Hubert L. Payne, treasurer of the Knoxville local. The committee said Reynolds was not related to Detective Reynolds.

U.S. Okays Visitors to China Jails

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—The State department changed signals today and said it would permit close relatives to visit six Americans still held in Chinese Communist prisons.

The action reversed a January, 1955, decision by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles that it would be "imprudent" for relatives of jailed Americans to go to Red China.

At that time, the Communists held 52 Americans and was voicing many threats against the United States. The number of prisoners since has been whittled down to six.

Teamsters Union Ousted By 5-to-1 AFL-CIO Vote

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Dec. 6 (AP)—The AFL-CIO today expelled the corruption-stained Teamsters Union —the nation's largest—from the ranks of the organized labor movement by a vote of five to one.

Delegates to the AFL-CIO second biennial convention rejected pleas for a year's "clean up" time by Teamsters officials in ousting the 1,500,000-member trucking union.

The vote was 10,458,498 to 2,266,497, cast by the delegates on the basis of union membership strength.

"CORRUPT CONTROL"

The action came after AFL-CIO President George Meany told the delegates they must vote to free rank-and-file teamster members from a "dictatorship" and "corrupt control." Charges against Teamster President-elect James R. Hoffa and outgoing President Dave Beck were the keystones of the case against the Teamster hierarchy.

Hoffa, in New York where he is being tried on wiretapping conspiracy charges, said "Is that so?" when informed of the ouster.

"They (the AFL-CIO) didn't build us and they won't weaken us," he added.

9-MAN COMMITTEE

Hoffa said the Teamsters would continue to work with other unions "so long as they do not attempt to destroy our economy or attempt to direct or control us."

Eighty-seven AFL-CIO unions supported the recommendation of a nine-man appeals committee to banish the Teamsters. Twenty-one, including several from the building trades, voted against ouster. Four others split their vote and thirteen abstained.

OCTOBER SUSPENSION

Corruption charges against Hoffa and Beck led to the AFL-CIO Executive Council's suspension last October. The union objected unsuccessfully that there was no proof of the accusations.

Teamsters Secretary-Treasurer John F. English led a Teamsters delegation out of the hall when it was obvious the expulsion would go through.

English, in a speech spiced with truckers' profanity, charged that not five of the unions assembled could stand the "acid test" of public scrutiny.

Tear Gas Used As 3,000 Poles Battle Police

WARSAW, Dec. 6 (UP)—Some 3,000 Poles rioted against police in the western town of Gorzow last Monday and police used tear gas to restore order, it was disclosed today.

The Communist party newspaper Trybuna Ludu said the latest in a series of disorders occurred when a woman riding a bicycle was knocked down by a police car.

It reported that although she was injured only slightly, a rumor spread that she had been killed.

A crowd of 3,000 massed and started throwing stones and bottles at police. Reserve units rushed to the scene and sprayed the angry crowd with tear gas.

Ike Seeks Full Report On Rocket

GETTESBURG, Pa., Dec. 6 (AP)—After asking for a full report on the Vanguard failure, President Eisenhower spent a quiet day at his snow-blanketed farm today.

He was attempting to build up enough stamina for the crucial NATO Council meeting in Paris Dec. 16-18.

By telephone from Washington, Eisenhower was notified that the rocket intended to blast America's first test satellite into space had exploded on its Florida launching pad. White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said the President had asked for a full report on the failure.

MAJOR PROBLEM

The pace of Soviet scientific and diplomatic advances is one of the great problems hanging over the forthcoming NATO sessions.

There is no question that Eisenhower wants to go, meet with chiefs of state of other free world nations, and try to knit together a firmer anti-Communist alliance.

He may possibly bounce back far enough from his mild stroke of Nov. 25 to fly to Paris late next week. The thing that may stop him is his doctors.

Hagerty stood firmly behind what he has been saying for more than a week—that Eisenhower hopes to go to Paris, that the final decision is up to the physicians, and that Vice President Nixon will fill in if Eisenhower remains at home.

REPORT 'COCKEYED'

Hagerty denied a published report that Eisenhower already has decided to make the trip.

"I noticed that story," he said, "and it is completely cockeyed."

The press secretary said, too, he knows of no plans to hold down the number of meetings in Paris so as to limit the strain on Eisenhower if he does attend. One meeting a day was all that was scheduled, he said.

The President spent part of the morning working on an oil portrait of his granddaughter, Barbara Anne Eisenhower, 8. He worked from a photograph of her.

Hagerty said Eisenhower also planned a portrait of another granddaughter, 5-year-old Susan. He has been working on a portrait of Princess Anne, daughter of Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip of Britain.

Nixon Says Ike Will Not Shun Deficit if Defense Requires It

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP) — Vice President Nixon said tonight President Eisenhower expects to submit a balanced budget to Congress but would not hesitate to employ deficit spending if necessary for an adequate defense.

Nixon told the 62nd Congress of American Industry "there will obviously not be a tax cut nor do we anticipate a tax increase" under present world conditions.

Asserting that the Russian Sputnik launchings have signaled an all out and lengthy cold war, Nixon said that "our total danger is great."

"We are in the midst of a world conflict in which the Sputniks are but a single episode," he said. "Call it a cold war; or a contest for man's minds; or a race for outer space.

Nixon said substantial amounts will have to be added to the U.S. defense budget. To offset this he said some domestic programs that are desirable but not absolutely necessary will be eliminated and others reduced.

"As a result," he said, "in spite of the increase in defense spending the prospects are good that the administration will be able to submit its fourth balanced budget in a row next January.

"However, if . . . we find a balanced budget would provide an inadequate amount for our defense, there is no question as to the choice we will make. The security of the United States must be placed above all other considerations."

Nixon said it was time to put into perspective the reactions of Americans to recent world events. Earlier in the day he had declined comment on the failure of the Vanguard satellite attempt.

"We have heard some panicky comments to the effect that because the Soviet Union was able to launch its satellites our military position is desperate, our economy inferior and our educational system a failure," he said. "Let us examine some unsugarcoated facts.

"Militarily the United States and the free world over-all are stronger than any potential aggressor. We have the will, ability and resources to catch up in those areas where we are behind and to retain our over-all position of superiority.

"We must spend whatever is necessary to accomplish this objective. This means that substantial amounts will have to be added to our defense budget. Under this expanded program there will not and should not be a blank check for unlimited defense spending. Our guard must be up for a long period of tension."

Nixon said he realized that it would be pleasant to offer some tax reduction. But he added "the lowest taxes, the highest profits, the best wages in history won't make any difference if we are not around to enjoy them."

Nixon said that too many Americans had blithely assumed that this country would automatically be first in economic progress, military strength and scientific invention.

Snark Flies Full Range 5,000 Miles

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—The Defense Department said today a Snark intercontinental guided missile successfully flew its full range after launching last night.

The Snark, while slower than an intercontinental ballistic missile, has essentially the same range—5,000 miles.

In the present test, the Snark was launched about 11 p.m. EST yesterday from the missile test center, Cape Canaveral, Fla. The missile, which is essentially a pilotless, swept-wing jet bomber, flew its full range and landed in the selected target area in the South Atlantic, the department said.

2 Independents Qualify To Run Against Mitchell

Two Independents have qualified to run against Judge Erwin Mitchell of Dalton for the late Rep. Henderson Lanham's seat, Secretary of State Ben Fortson said Friday.

He listed them as Harbin King of Calhoun and Grover Clark of Douglasville.

Thus far, Republicans have not officially qualified a candidate, Fortson said. The Seventh District Republican Executive Committee in Rome Thursday night named Howard Purdy of Bremen as their candidate. However, the Republicans have not yet notified the secretary of state's office.

Deadline for qualifying is noon Saturday, Fortson said. The election will be held Jan. 8.

The secretary of state declared that both King and Clark would be listed as independents. Last year King attempted to enter the Congressional race as a Republican.

Meanwhile, Democrats officially qualified Mitchell Friday. They reported he won 24,888 votes (36 units) vs. 10,031 (four units) for State Sen. Bobby Lee Cook of Summerville and 7,926 (six units) for Judge James E. Manning of Marietta.

Price Gets Time To Ready Files For June Appeal

A. U.S. District judge here Friday granted Texas oilman Eldridge Solomon Price until June, 1958, to get his files and court records ready for the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Price was convicted here in October of swindling 36 persons, mostly Georgians, in bogus oil and uranium land deals in Texas and Utah. The 64-year-old oilman was sentenced to a total of seven years in federal prison.

U.S. Judge Frank A. Hooper granted a motion by Price's attorneys for an order "extending time in which to file and docket the record on appeal until June 1, 1958."

Normally, he would have only 90 days from the time of his notice of appeal to file the records with the appellate court.

have been added to other ingredients.

The city has charged $1,000 a year for wine pouring licenses since 1950. The presumption is that holders of such licenses have sold mixed drinks. The license, however, authorizes the pouring of wine only and makes no reference to mixed drinks.

City Clerk Joe L. Ricahrdson says some 65 are now in force.

City Atty. Jack Savage said the city has never authorized the sale of mixed drinks, but only wine pouring licenses.

Recent grand juries have investigated the sale of alcoholic beverages in Atlanta and concluded "We believe the city government of Atlanta and the police department are making an honest effort to control and regulate the sale of alcoholic beverages in the best manner possible."

If the city officials await final judgment in the Columbus case, Christmas may not be drier than usual because no decision is expected before after the holidays. It also was pointed out that the state alcoholic control bureau could move "any minute there has been a state violation."

be some time before anyone does know. I don't know what plans are being made for replacing the buildings."

Mayor Griffin was quick to express the thanks of the people of Villa Rica for the help they received from other cities all over Georgia.

"I have always felt that the people of Georgia had more than their share of Christian compassion," Mayor Griffin said. "The way everyone in the state tried to help us yesterday and today proves I was right."

The National Guard Friday pulled out most of the men it had sent to help in the rescue operations. A few were left to stand guard over damaged stores to prevent any possibility of looting. Two men were arrested Thursday night on charges of looting, Lt. Col. Horace T. Clary of the National Guard said.

Gas service had been restored to the residential section of Villa Rica by Friday morning, but was still not restored in the business district. Atlanta Gas Light Co., called on for help by the Villa Rica municipal gas company, helped in restoring the service.

No one Friday could say exactly what triggered the explosion, although it was definitely classed as a blast from leaking natural gas. Three of those killed were either working on gas lines in the basement of the drugstore building or were searching for a leak, Villa Ricans said Friday.

Several merchants had reported smelling gas in the buildings during the past week, one survivor of the blast said.

Hospital authorities at Villa Rica said that victims of the blast who were patients there were "progressing." Several were still listed in critical condition. More than 20 persons were injured in the explosion, although some were treated at the hospital here and at Carrollton and dismissed.

Mayor Griffin said that when the buildings blew up an election for councilman was taking place.

"We called off the election and went to work," the mayor said. "We'll have to have a meeting and set up a new time for the election."

Six of the blast victims were buried Friday. They were O. T. and Johnny Dyer, Bobby Roberts, Carolyn Davis, Rozelle Johnson and Carl Vitner.

Five of the dead were to be buried Saturday. They were Dr. Jack Burnham, Oscar Hixon, Kenneth Hendrix, Robert Broome, and Mrs. Anne Smith.

Mrs. Margaret Berry will be buried Sunday.

Governor Marvin Griffin Friday expressed the whole state's condolences to the people of Villa Rica.

Gov. Griffin offered the help of any state agencies the town may need for its assistance.

McIntosh Land Sale Indicts 2

McIntosh County Commission Chairman Lachlan McIntosh and Commissioner Lyle S. Howard are under indictment on charges of selling for $200 county property worth $10,000.

Both McIntosh and Howard posted $500 bonds at Darien shortly after grand jury indictments were returned Thursday.

Elected chairman earlier this week, McIntosh replaced W. H. Graham who was convicted of swindling the county of about $9,000.

Graham paid a $500 fine and resigned his post in the face of a removal action by a group of citizens.

The property which McIntosh and Howard are charged with selling consists of 102 acres and two houses at nearby Harris Neck Airport.

Sheriff Tom Poppell has held a lease on the land since 1951 but, the jury reported, has agreed to its request to surrender his lease and not to remove anything from the property except his personal effects.

When the county obtained the land as government surplus in 1948, its sale was forbidden without written consent of the Civil Aeronautics Administrator. The grand jury charged McIntosh and Howard sold the property without authority from the county commission and the federal government.

Release of DeKalb Mother In Ice-Pick Slaying Sought

By OSCAR JOHNSON

The next friend of a 24-year-old Decatur woman indicted for murder and committed to Milledgeville State Hospital in connection with the Dec. 26, 1954, ice-pick slaying of her 22-month-old son has filed suit to have the woman released.

A suit was filed in DeKalb Superior Court against Dr. T. G. Peacock, as director of the hospital, by Wilbur B. Nall, attorney, as next friend of Mrs. Dolores de Galleford.

Nall said in the suit that Mrs. de Galleford was committed to the hospital on Feb. 10, 1955, and "The alleged cause of commitment does not now exist."

Superior Court records show that Mrs. de Galleford was indicted by a grand jury on Feb. 8, 1955, in connection with the ice pick slaying of her son, Stephen Russell de Galleford.

Mrs. de Galleford entered a special plea of insanity and a jury found for the plea. She was committed to Milledgeville on Feb. 10, 1955, by order of Superior Court Judge Frank Guess.

The suit says that Mrs. de Galleford should be released from further custody, "and, if discharged, she would not be a source of danger to herself or to others."

Police records show the mother was treated at Grady Hospital for multiple, self-inflicted wounds, following discovery of the body of her son at their home.

Judge Clarence Vaughn has ordered a hearing for March 3, 1958.

Rocket Test Failed But All Isn't Lost

On Friday the Vanguard missile failed in a test and it was announced that the President may go to Paris for the NATO session.

Although unrelated, the President's trip could in large measure offset the propaganda effect of the Vanguard failure.

President Eisenhower's reported desire to take an active part in the NATO meeting may save it. Without him and his prestige, it might well have been doomed before it began.

Meanwhile it will be helpful if the Vanguard failure, dismaying and embarrassing though it be, is put in the proper perspective.

We hurried too much. The media of press, radio and TV treated this test as if it were a "catching up with the Russians." The Defense Department failed to make it clear it was a test of a missile generally regarded as unproved and unreliable.

But nonetheless the press, radio and TV had a responsibility all the more important if the Navy PIO staff was being allowed to issue poorly conceived press releases from Cape Canaveral. The Martin Co., which built the Vanguard, noted ahead of time that "in this sort of thing failures occur about three times out of seven." None of this was emphasized to the public or the world, and so Uncle Sam takes another propaganda blow on his chin whiskers.

We can't catch up with the Russians overnight.

We can and will soon have a satellite in an orbit. All is by no means lost. In the field of general science we are still ahead of the Russians.

But what we have done is to create a somewhat immature and juvenile atmosphere in which a rocket test is exaggerated and allowed to balloon to proportions out of keeping with the facts.

Meanwhile we have the Jupiter, an Army production. It has been fired with success. The logical thing to do would be to test another Jupiter, making it clear it is a test and that three out of seven such tests fail.

The Russians never let us know how many failures they had before their two successes—or, for that matter, how many since have failed. We can't overtake the Russians with one success. And we are not any farther behind because of one more failure.

What we can do is quit making a circus out of each test firing. And, more important, we can get down to the business of revising our approach, both direct and in the long-run phase of reorganizing our educational processes.

Bartow's Fee System Is Under Microscope

Bartow is the latest of several Georgia counties to weigh a change from the fee to salary system for elected officials.

A committee from the recent Bartow County Grand Jury is studying the proposed change and will report at the January grand jury session.

In a number of other counties the fee system has been tried and found wanting. It is an outmoded arrangement which by its very nature lends itself to abuse.

Counties that have made the change-over have been pleased with the results. It has meant more revenue for their treasuries, less complaints and better record-keeping. Services rendered by officials affected have been unimpaired.

The obvious reasons for establishing the fee system in pioneer days no longer exist. It should be discarded throughout the state.

Driver Training Plan Doesn't Go Far Enough

No doubt the state's legislative committee on highway safety is well-intentioned in its proposal to shift driver training from the Education Department to the Safety Department.

The intent is economy.

But we believe the proposal to be unrealistic and the economy to be false.

The committee will recommend the assignment of 36 patrolmen to driver training.

Let's see now how far that force would spread.

There are 665 high schools in the state. In those schools there is a potential of 40,000 young people eligible annually for driver training.

The spread thus would be about 1,200 students per instructor. That's slicing the instruction thin.

It could mean only a few hours' instruction under the wheel.

That won't do it.

Teaching good driving requires classroom conditioning as well as in-the-car training. That kind of driver education is working successfully in other states.

The problem of course is finance.

The state committee proposes $2 from each case handled by state patrolmen be put into the driver training program.

That is fine, as far as it goes.

But let's not give up on a complete driver education program that includes classroom instruction.

Why not let the licensee pay part of the cost as a tuition or laboratory fee?

Savings in lives and prevention of property damage made possible through thorough driving training are too important to jeopardize by pinch-penny attitudes toward cost.

Medical Assn. Again Endorses Fluoridation

The American Medical Assn. has reaffirmed its faith in fluoridation of public water supplies as a safe method of reducing dental decay in childhood. The reendorsement was by the House of Delegates, the policy-making body of the AMA.

It came after an exhaustive new study.

The reaffirmation is in stronger language than the positive statement made by the AMA in 1951.

What this means is that a jury of the nation's doctors has reviewed the evidence and upheld a verdict.

The American Medical Assn. decision is convincing evidence to an open-minded public.

Not many people have the scientific background to evaluate scientific documents. They must decide on the basis of their confidence in medical, dental, public health and scientific authorities.

The AMA has made the study and evaluated the evidence. Once more it is saying to the public that fluoridation is effective and safe.

Atlanta has been waiting on that verdict.

There is every reason to hope and believe that the city will now move toward providing for children the teeth protection already yielding benefits in suburban areas and in many other Georgia communities.

A Fair Proposal Made On the Role of States

Political malcontents who have been bitterly assailing so-called federal infringement upon states' rights now are having their hands called.

The federal-state action committee, established after President Eisenhower's address last June to the conference of governors at Williamsburg, Va., has recommended that the states take over four programs which the federal government has been financing. This conceivably would be a starter toward delegating other programs to the states.

The current proposal is a fair one. It would allow the states to collect fourtenths of the 10 per cent federal excise tax on local telephone service. This would give them 150 million dollars annually.

In turn, the states would assume responsibility for vocational education, municipal waste treatment plants, advance planning for slum clearance projects and disaster relief for damage to public facilities. These programs cost about 105 million dollars annually.

The President is expected to submit the plan to Congress. Then it will be interesting to see whether the avid states' righters are willing to assume some of the responsibility they shout about or whether they will try to weasel out.

Court Finally Disposes Of Well-Known Figure

We would like to join other citizens in congratulating the dispatch and thoroughness of preparation on the part of the Fulton Criminal Court staff. Its presentation of the case against the notorious police character Margaret Hodges resulted in a jury conviction and a sentence of five years on lottery charges.

Mrs. Hodges managed to remain out of jail for a long time, despite a long list of arrests stretching across a number of years. She also was able to persuade at least one obviously naive grand jury committee to assist her in being released from one sentence on the promise of digging up evidence against others. This she did not do.

Atlanta police raided her place so successfully and the Fulton staff prepared its case so thoroughly that she is now under sentence.

We trust all concerned will keep an eye on this unsavory and unwholesome character while she is at liberty under an appeal bond.

Tifton Farmer Charges Benson's Soil Bank Turns Many American Citizens Into Tramps

Tifton — This is not just another letter to the paper but a few facts that should be studied by every person in this nation.

Within the next 10 days the soil bank will cost me $3,500 and a place to stay and work, because I am a farmer and not a landlord. I rent land to farm and to make a living. But not any more, for the very government that I and millions of others fought for has decided to pay the landlords more money in the soil bank program than I or anyone else can pay. Where is this money coming from? It is coming out of the consumer's pocket and higher taxes.

It is a well-known fact that for every dollar the farmer gets out of the government somebody has to pay from three dollars to five dollars to get it back. If turning honest citizens into tramps and making bums out of the working class of farmers is a healthy way to prosperity, I just do not understand it. As I said before, the soil bank will cost me $3,500 and a place to stay and work and I will never get one thin dime out of it.

I am being cut off from my work by the great do-gooder, the government of the United States, that thinks a man can march on an empty belly.

North Carolinan Cites Two Autobiographies

Wake Forest, N.C. — I deeply wish everyone troubled about the "race problem" would read two fascinating autobiographies that have just moved me deeply. One is "Our Miss Rosie" in November Reader's Digest. It is a moving, fascinating story of how the kindness of a lovely Christian woman lifted a starving hopeless child of the slums to true goodness and greatness.

The other is "My Lord, What a Morning," the autobiography of Marian Anderson, a truly fascinating, ennobling story.

The sympathetic reader of each story cannot but feel proud and thankful that the human race has produced such a person, regardless of the color of the skin.

Mariettan Wonders About Motivations

Marietta — Regarding Mr. George Keeler's recent attack on the ministers' manifesto with reference to segregation, there are a few questions in the minds of many, such as:

In the first place, is Mr. Keeler a regular church attendant?

It has been my experience that people who stand ready to attack God's appointed people, ministers especially, entertain a feeling of inadequacy spiritually, a pricking of conscience, so to speak.

Atlantan Proposes Disability Commission

Atlanta—Again we are faced, in a time of great emergency, with the problem of who should decide when a President of the United States is too incapacitated to perform his duties.

To my simple mind this should be a medical decision called for and put into effect by a special commission provided by act of Congress in such wise as to implement the plain intent of the Constitution.

The special commission might be headed by the chief justice of the Supreme Court or by a justice named by him; the secretaries of state, treasury and defense and the attorney general; the speaker of the House of Representatives and the president pro tem of the Senate with the exception that in case there is no vice president, the speaker would not serve and, if no speaker, the president pro tem would not serve.

Any appeal from the special commission would be taken directly to the Supreme Court and would take precedence over any other business of that body. In case of such appeal, the member of the court serving on the commission would be disqualified from sitting on the case. As in all other cases, a tie vote in the Supreme Court would mean dismissal of the appeal.

Effects of Rural Revolution Are Good as Well as Bad

Many Georgia counties are concerned and rightfully so about the shift of population from the farms to the towns and from the towns to the cities.

The population pattern is of course highly significant because upon it depends the type economy a county has, which occupations are profitable and which are not, which subjects should be taught in school, whether the racial problem will grow or lessen and myriad others.

There are many reasons for the reduction in the "strictly rural" population. Among these are vast strides in mechanization of the farm, the Soil Bank, the traditional trend toward urbanization and the industrialization of the South, which has lured many farmers away from the land.

Only last week the coordinator of the Rural Development Program of the U.S. Department of Agriculture said:

"There is a way to keep more people out in the open country, on farms, in rural America. It can be done by dispersing industry and putting more jobs within reach of farm families."

A recent survey showed three-fourths or 115 of our Georgia counties have lost population since the 1950 census.

The picture is a gloomy one, indeed, when only statistics on the population trend of the counties as a whole is considered.

Actually the figures are misleading, for the assumption has grown that cities and towns within the counties are likewise, as it were, "withering on the vine."

The Georgia Press Assn. points out that, on the contrary, 95 of the 96 Georgia towns having 2,500 or more people in 1950 have shown substantial increases in population.

For example, here are percentages of increase enjoyed by a number of middle Georgia cities and towns since the 1950 census, according to figures furnished by the GPA:

Milledgeville 16.5 per cent growth, Fitzgerald 7, Macon 12.7, Statesboro 13.1, Cordele 12, Eastman 5.6, Swainsboro 11.6, Perry 42.8, Sylvester 14.4, Ocilla 14.9, Hazelhurst 26.5, Barnesville 12.3, Dublin 17.3, Cochran 19.2, Montezuma 13, Forsyth 18.4, Ft. Valley 20:2, Hawkinsville 7.7, Eatonton 9.1, Cuthbert 9.3, Americus 13.3, Tifton 17.1, Vidalia 22, Ashburn 16.5, Thomaston 15.5 and Sandersville 13.8.

All these estimates were described as conservative.

Small businessmen in these towns, concerned because of reports of widespread county population loss, should reappraise their situation. The migration has in one sense actually improved their immediate market areas potential.

This is not to say a problem doesn't exist. The problem just may be entirely different from what we had thought it was.

A Space Man Will Knock

Human interest turns these days from Sputnik to Saintnik. The man who comes knocking will be the man with the stocking. Sunday morning, that is. He'll be a space man, a young man with space to fill. He'll want with you a word about a void.

For the stocking is empty.

And the word the young man would have is how much will you give out of your blessings to help fill that stocking for a little boy or girl who otherwise might take down the stocking and find nothing there but space.

The way you'll help fill the space is to pay generously for a cheerful green Empty Stocking edition of your newspaper. In it you'll find an earful on how all the funds collected by the Junior Chamber of Commerce laddies in this project go to bring hope and happiness for young ones in families strictly budgeted on both.

Down in Augusta they were telling the story about a fellow who got to the hotel late and asked about a room.

The clerk said he was out of space.

Finally, he ran out of patience. "I've told you eight times," he said, "We don't have a room for you."

"Look," said the latecomer. "If President Eisenhower were to come in at this hour, you'd find a room for him, wouldn't you?"

The clerk allowed he would.

"Well," said the latecomer, "Eisenhower is not here. You can let me have his room."

Finding a place for him without influence is the more commendable.

Once there were two strangers, you remember, who had trouble about that very thing one night at a hotel in Bethlehem.

Shopping for someone who has everything is hard and not too much fun.

It's easy to buy Christmas for someone who has nothing.

Yes, Ginny, there will be something in your Christmas stocking because there are those who care enough to share.

By the way, if you want to help another very special cause, those beautiful Little Christmas Town calendars are available from Nell (Mrs. Walthall) Simmons of College Park. The nation's epileptics are the beneficiaries.

The calendars are fine for giving or as mantel and table pieces.

These Top Men Knew the Answer

The other week while I was in another city for some speaking engagements, one of the top officials of a large company invited me to his office for lunch. He asked that I come in time to see something of their work. This company has recently completed a new building at a cost of 15 million dollars.

We ended our tour in a lovely private dining room. He had invited six other guests for lunch. As we sat leisurely together, the conversation went from one subject to another. One of the men was an outstanding physician who is doing special research in the study of cancer. We talked about man's fight against cancer and rejoiced to hear him express confidence that the battle against that dread disease will be won.

The conversation drifted into talk about inflation, "tight money" and general economic conditions. Eventually someone brought up the problems of the race question and we expressed opinions about that. The comment on the various questions was interesting and on the high level one would expect from men who had attained distinction in their respective fields of work. Then one of the men said something like this, "Man has learned a lot of things and has accomplished much but we will never solve our problems except through the application of the principles of Christ."

When he said that I thought of those men sitting around that table. They were men who were educated and who could think; men who are familiar with the accomplishments the world today possesses. Yet they agree that One called Jesus has the real and abiding answers. I thought of how differently Jesus lived than have these men. He was born in a remote and conquered province nearly 20 centuries ago.

He worked in a simple carpenter's shop, had an average Jewish boy's education; the historians of His day paid no attention to Him. His teachings were mostly roadside conversations with small groups of people. His last bed was a cross and His body was placed in a borrowed tomb.

Yet He said such things about Himself as, "Ye call Me master and Lord, and ye say well, for so I am"; "I am the way, the truth and the life"; "I am the resurrection and the life"; "I am the light of the world." And increasingly down through 20 centuries the best thinkers have accepted Him to be what He said that He was. He claimed to be Lord and Master, yet He pushes no one around. His is a mastery which can lead men to the new world.

It did my heart good to sit at a luncheon with some men who are big in their thinking and hear them say Jesus is the answer. Some day, I pray, the entire world will come to that conclusion and I believe it will.

Radical Changes Ready for Military

WASHINGTON—A radical reorganization of the defense setup is in the making. It is headed toward removing at least the worst of what Dr. Vannevar Bush, who headed military research and development during the war, described to the Senate investigators last week as the "hampering," "damaging," "disgraceful" rivalry between the armed forces.

It will center authority more effectively in the hands of Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy and may well bring about a re-casting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Steps to achieve this reorganization are to be taken this month.

Quiet words forecasting this action have been in the news for several weeks.

The rigorous consequences which this action will bring are only just coming into the open.

Here is what is going to happen:

All research and development of all "new and novel weapons" will be taken out of the control of the services and placed under a single manager responsible to the secretary of defense and administered without regard to the separate services.

The immediate application of this concept will come in the development of the anti-missile missile—already a bone of jealous controversy between the Army and the Air Force. The projected satellite, satellite applications and all future outer space devices will be similarly organized apart from and above the competing services.

All this may sound fairly innocent on the surface.

It isn't going to seem very innocent to much of the top brass in the Pentagon.

If I see at all clearly down the road where McElroy is headed, he is headed toward the creation of a single command (called single manager) for the development of all new and novel weapons.

This command will not be under any of the services.

It will cut across all the services.

It will be put under the authority of the secretary of defense, not under the authority of either the Army, Navy or Air Force.

Secretary McElroy's announcement that he will soon apply the "single manager" concept to "new and novel weapons" is a quiet fuse with a terrific potential blast.

This extension of the "single manager" system to "new and novel weapons" is the most significant decision of Secretary McElroy's tenure thus far.

We Must Somehow Stop Short of War

WASHINGTON—So we make bigger and better missiles, fill the air with them, and acquire almost pin-point accuracy. So what? We might be able to hit not just a whole city, but one neighborhood, say the New York financial section or the White House or the Capitol or the Kremlin in Moscow where "Good Old Joe" used to be or maybe where Nikita Khrushchev hangs out for his toddy.

So we make more and more missiles and rockets and pile up atomic bombs and put them on missiles as warheads. Then, human nature being what it is, and the few people who have the decision being human, someone or other can more easily than you would think just flick a lever because of some strange quirk. Maybe pique. Maybe what we call national pride. Then one missile with a warhead provokes another—and that is it.

Before it is too late why don't we stop a minute and figure.

Instead of concentrating entirely on the sort of scientists who deal in missiles, rockets, earth satellites, nuclear weapons and such, why don't we call in also another sort of scientist, too? These are the scientists in the field of human behavior, sometimes called psychologists or psychiatrists, who try to understand human beings and why they act as they do. Why not see if they can't help us keep from destroying ourselves?

Then let us call another sort of scientists. These are our politicians, sometimes glorified—but not by politicians themselves—as statesmen. For politics is a proud calling and they are proud of it. They are valuable practitioners in our society and have kept us out of lots of trouble as well as having got us into a lot of trouble.

From governments of individual nations we have evolved in recent years an international government of many individual nations—the United Nations. Those who participate in the government of this international organization also are politicians. Working together as representatives of individual nations in this bigger government they have accomplished a great deal.

Now, instead of concentrating on which of us can produce the biggest missiles and glorifying the scientists who make them, why don't we also bring together with them other types of scientists, those who counsel about human behavior and those who try to help people to govern themselves?

There's no reason why we shouldn't have them working together before we just blow ourselves up.

The danger to all of us is brought to us vividly by one of our foremost scientists in human behavior. This is Dr. Carl G. Jung, founder of analytical psychology, a Swiss, who has lots of good advice for us in an article in the current 100th anniversary edition of the Atlantic Monthly, of which an excerpt may be helpful as a starter to make us think:

"It needs only an almost imperceptible disturbance of equilibrium in a few of our rulers' heads to plunge the world into blood, fire and radioactivity. The technical means necessary for this are present on both sides. And certain conscious deliberations uncontrolled by any inner opponent (the subconscious) can be indulged in all too easily, as we have seen already from the example for one leader (Hitler)."

Failure of Vanguard Is Called 'Humiliating'

country the laughing stock of the world?"

Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the Senate Armed Services Committee described the Vanguard failure as "a grievous blow to our already waning world prestige."

"Better point to a satellite coursing in the heavens than to have all this fanfare over a dubious experiment," he said.

Defense Department officials asserted the government made no publicity buildup.

The Senate's majority leader, Sen. Johnson (D-Tex), called the Florida fiasco "one of the best publicized—and most humiliating—failures in our history."

Speaking to an audience in Amarillo, Tex., he added: "I shrink a little inside of me whenever the United States announces a great event—and it blows up in our face. And I guess all of you know that is just what happened this morning with our much advertised, belated and poorly satellite.

Sen. Russell said he doubts the failure of today's attempt has hurt the program itself, even though it has hurt American prestige.

"I don't doubt that the Russians had a great many failures before they launched theirs," he continued, "but the world doesn't learn about those under their system."

Rep. Ford (R-Mich), the ranking GOP member of the Army panel of the House Appropriations Committee, blamed the press for some of the damage to U.S. prestige."

"With all the buildup we've had on this, there is now over-emphasis on a minor technical defeat, and damage to our worldwide prestige. . . . The press must share the blame," Ford said.

In New York, Cmdr. Robert Truax, president of the American Rocket Society, commented that you have to expect failure in anything like the Vanguard test.

"With the pressure the scientific crew was under," he said, "conducting a test with the nation looking down their throats, I would have been surprised if it were a success for that reason alone."

Truax added that most missiles, simpler than the Vanguard, have been fired at least 100 times before they are considered operational.

The director of the Vanguard project, Dr. John P. Hagen, called the "unprecedented publicity" unfortunate and indicated he might seek less extensive publicity for the next attempt. He disclosed he had sought to limit the publicity for today's test but had been overruled.

Johnson announced in Texas that his Senate Preparedness subcommittee will request a full report of the Cape Canaveral test.

Vanguard's Blast Hurt U.S. Prestige

it, the Vanguard failure has no very great significance insofar as the arms race with Russia is concerned.

But from a psychological and political point of view the damage is considerable and could be enormous.

The Soviet Union flashed ahead of the United States, with all of its scientific resources and productive capacity, with the Sputnik.

One of the reactions to this startling event was the visit to Washington of British Prime Minister Macmillan with a plea for restoring Britain's wartime science partnership with the United States. The result of Macmillan's talks with President Eisenhower, coupled with a visit by NATO's secretary general, Paul Henri Spaak, was the decision to arrange a summit meeting of the North Atlantic Allies.

Some diplomats have felt that in thep reliminary stages the United States was showing a lack of bold imagination and aggressive leadership. Democratic party leaders have accused the Eisenhower administration of failure to develop a sense of urgency about meeting the Soviet challenge.

It was against this background that the Vanguard failure made its diplomatic and psychological impact on the world today.

Rocket Climbs 4 Feet, Topples and Explodes

engine was not pushing the rocket up.

"The rocket fell back down into the stand, and then fell over. There was a terrific noise — a series of rumbles — and then a very rapid burning. A ball of flame shot up to 50 or 100 feet.

"There was no shock wave—it was not a high order of detonation. I said to Hagen over the phone, 'Explosion'.

"I am not sure it should be classed as an explosion, but I guess you would be right in describing it that way.

"In the strict technical sense, it was a rapid burning.

"No one was injured — except perhaps for pride."

Walsh said the Vanguard crew has another vehicle in the Martin Co. hanger here, ready to go.

"We can move it out as soon as the stand is ready to accept it," he added.

Walsh was told that Washington authorities had announced there could not be another Vanguard try for at least 30 days.

"I don't think Washington knows as much as we do about this thing," he replied, but declined further comment.

JUPITER VEHICLE

Walsh referred to C. H. Schooley Defense Department information chief, a question as to whether the Navy was ready to move over and make room for the Army to try to launch a satellite with its Jupiter-C vehicle.

The Army reportedly has Jupiters here, ready for just such a circumstance.

Schooley said only recently the Army has been assigned a "supplementary activity" in the satellite-launching field, and its program is "not as far along" as the Vanguard effort.

In Washington, Hagen said there were no plans to call in the Army. He too said the Navy already has a "back-up vehicle" standing by for possible launching shortly.

Both Hagen and Walsh were asked about the cost of the ill-fated try.

Hagen said he'd have to think carefully about that. But he rejected a reporter's suggestion that the cost might be as high as several million dollars.

The over-all satellite program is expected to run up to 100 million dollars.

Hagen said that until the Vanguard launching pad is examined it cannot be determined how soon another test can be started.

If the pad were destroyed it may take "a couple of months at least" to replace it, he said. He added that he did not think damage to the steel pad would be that severe.

TOWER OF FLAME

Watchers saw a tower of flame first. Then black smoke obscured the site for three minutes.

When it cleared away columns of water could be seen playing on the launching stand.

Walsh reported that, curiously, the third stage—the very top part of the rocket—must have been thrown out. It was found on the ground, its solid propellant unexploded.

The aluminum satellite-sphere was "kicked" out of the third-stage assembly and found later, still broadcasting signals on 108 and 108.03 megacycles.

The first stage of the rocket, 44 feet long and almost 4 feet thick at the base, and the second stage, 31 feet long and 32 inches in diameter, were completely demolished, Walsh said.

NO EFFORT

There was no effort, or need, to destroy the big vehicle. It destroyed itself by falling back into its own fiery exhaust.

"Those flames were a combination of everything in the two stages that would burn," Walsh added.

These explosive fuels included tons of liquid oxygen and kerosene in the first stage and of fuming white nitric acid and unsymmetrical dimethyl hydrazine in the second stage.

Properly controlled and used these fuels would have sent the satellite to an orbital altitude of 300 miles and to a peak speed of 9,000 miles an hour. The third stage would have provided the final push to cause the sphere to orbit at 18,000 miles an hour.

DETAILED STUDY

Walsh said it was impossible to tell, without detailed study, what caused the failure, except that it was loss of thrust. He said the first-stage engine ignited properly, and all the indications on the control panel were correct.

"A lot of that steam you fellows saw was water and carbon dioxide," Walsh said.

Walsh said it was "definitely not true that we were pushed into the launching. We were ready." Walsh said the engineers eagerly await a full report from the telemetering equipment in the rocket's second stage.

"That equipment will be worth its weight in gold," he said. The formation to instruments in the telemetering devices signalled information to instruments in the blockhouse up to the very moment of their destruction.

He pointed out that this was the fourth test in the Vanguard series, and that the three others had been successful.

Mayor Hints Delaying of Fluoridation

lers, director of the Georgia Department of Public Health:

1. Evidence that majority of the local dental and medical professions or the health board favors fluoridation.

2. City Board of Aldermen's action endorsing the proposal.

3. An engineering plan must be submitted for approval.

The first step has been accomplished. Both the health board and the Fulton County Medical Society have moved for fluoridation.

CITY ACTION WAITS

Pro-fluoridation advocates see action by the City as the only holdback.

But Mayor Hartsfield says there is a legal question to be worked out between City and County as to who is responsible for financing fluoridation. He maintains that an opinion of City Attorney Jack G. Savage places responsibility on the Fulton County Health Board.

Under the Plan of Improvement the board is a joint city-county body. The county appropriates all money for health services.

JURISDICTION ISSUE

"Under the Plan for Improvement," Mayor Hartsfield said, "the Fulton County Health Board took over all health services of the City of Atlanta. Fluoridation is a health and medical matter."

The chairman of the Fulton Health Board, R. Howard Dobbs Jr., could not be reached for comment, but the group has endorsed fluoridation for two years.

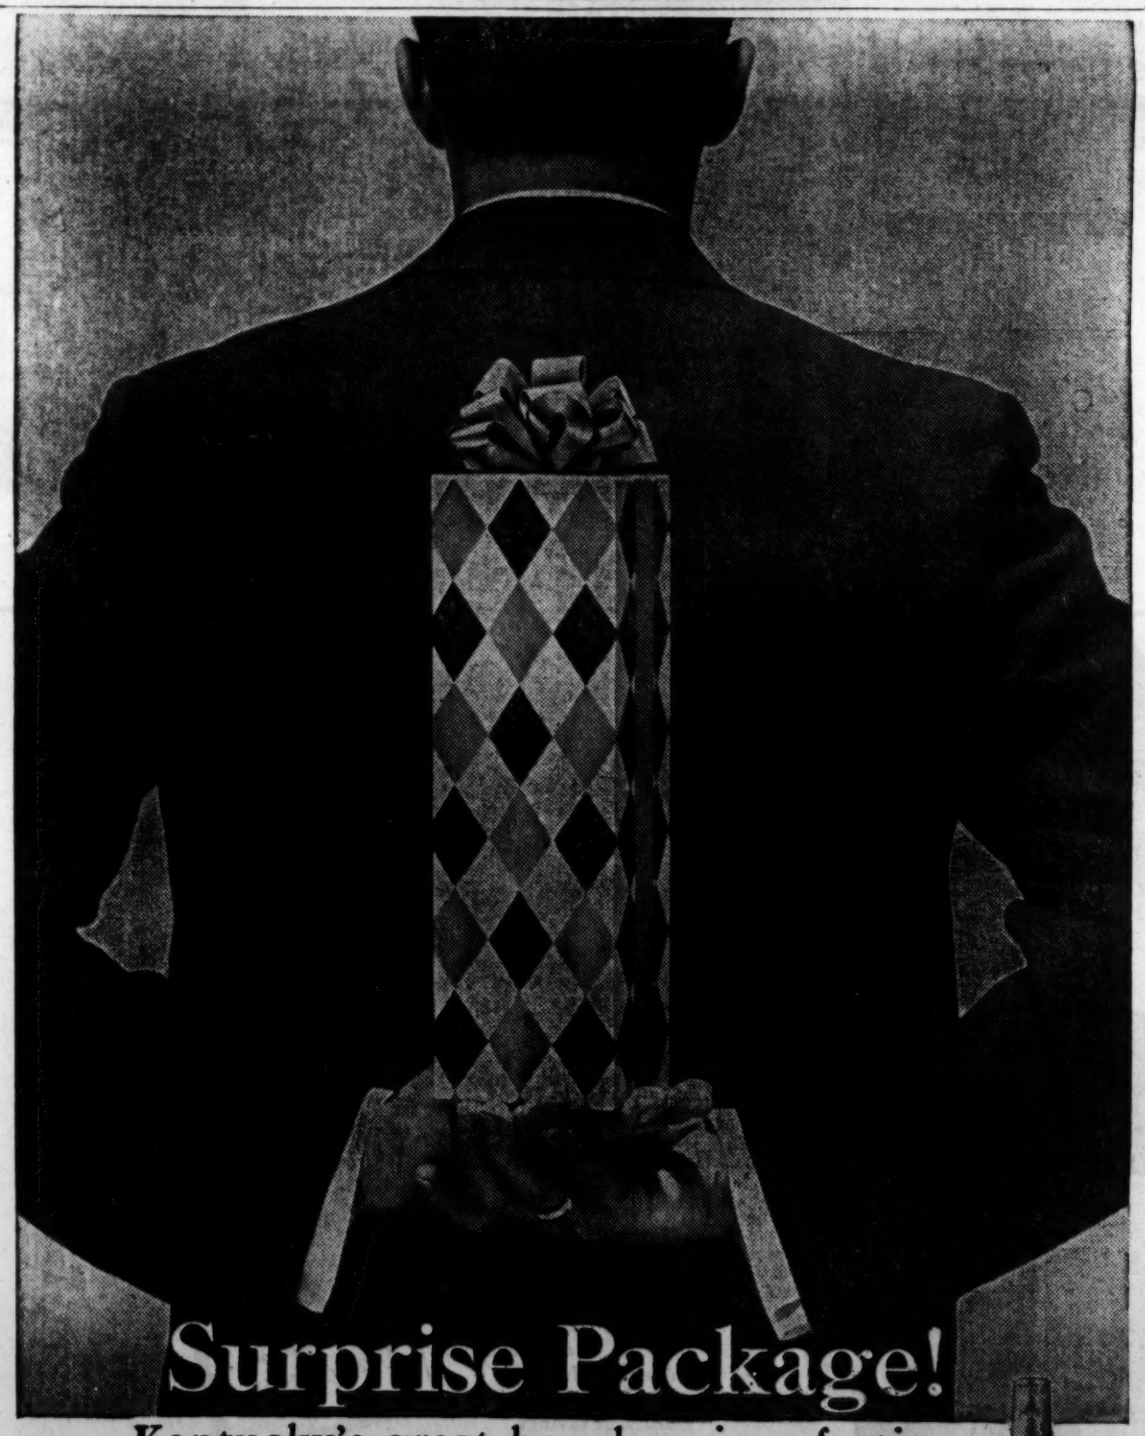

The AMA endorsement came "on the basis of an exhaustive new study." The House of Delegates, AMA policy-making body, approved the report during a clinical session in Philadelphia.

IN ATLANTA CHURCHES: Episcopal Diocese of Atlanta Marks 51st Year

BY KAY McLEOD

The Episcopal Diocese of Atlanta will mark its 50th anniversary this Sunday with the assemblage of 20 bishops at the Cathedral of St. Philip.

But the history of the Episcopal Church goes back much further than the 50 years of this diocese.

For in 1733 when Gen. Oglethorpe brought over his first settlers, the Rev. Henry Herbert, a minister of the Church of England, stepped off the "Anne." He was soon to establish Christ Church in Savannah.

Three years later John and Charles Wesley landed at St. Simons Island with Oglethorpe's second group of colonists and founded Christ Church at Frederica. The Wesleys later went back to England and founded The Methodist Church.

Bishop Claiborne Bishop Stuart

HARD SLEDDING

The Church of England, or Protestant Episcopal Church as it was to be known later, had some hard sledding during the Revolutionary period because the colonists weren't too kindly disposed to a church that represented the crown they were fighting.

One Angelican minister, the Rev. Haddon Smith, had to leave his church at Savannah and flee to England after he was locked out of his church and a few ardent colonists spoke of tarring and feathering the rector.

Dr. Henry T. Malone, instructor at Georgia State College and Episcopal layman who is writing a history of the church in Georgia, says "The church in Georgia flickered and sputtered after the Revolution, but remained alive."

Finally in 1823 the first Diocese of Georgia was formed. It contained three churches: Christ Church at Savannah, Christ Church at Frederica and St. Paul at Augusta. All of these churches are still active today.

More crises hit the church in the 1860's during what Dr. Malone terms "The War." Bishop Stephen Elliott, first Bishop of Georgia, said, "We have no political arguments, no doctrinal arguments with the U. S. church, but we're forced into a split."

BECAME SENIOR BISHOP

So he became the Senior Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Confederate States of America.

At that time the Episcopal Church ranked fifth in membership in Georgia and actually came out of the War Between the States with more churches than before.

One of the interesting incidents turned up in Dr. Malone's research for his book concerns Christ Church at Frederica.

The church was badly in need of repairs but there was no money available to effect them. One day someone noticed a large swarm of bees and found the steeple was almost filled with honey, relates Dr. Malone.

"BEE-HIVE CHURCH"

"Honey was turned into money" to make the needed repairs and the "Bee-Hive Missionary Society" was begun in the church. And Christ Church was nicknamed the "Bee-Hive Church," Dr. Malone relates.

When the church in Georgia became big enough for two dioceses, Bishop Cleland K. Nelson, Bishop of the Diocese of Georgia since 1892, went with the new Diocese of Atlanta and served until 1917. Succeeding him were Bishop Henry J. Mikell, who served until 1942; Bishop John Moore Walker, who served until 1951, and Bishop John B. Walthour, who died 10 months after his consecration in 1952. Bishop Randolph R. Claiborne was consecrated in 1952 and still serves the diocese.

In Georgia today there are 38,000 baptized members: 24,000 in the Diocese of Atlanta, and 14,000 in the Diocese of Georgia. The Rt. Rev. Albert R. Stuart is Bishop of the Diocese of Georgia.

On Sunday morning the 20 bishops will visit the various churches in the Atlanta area and will then gather at the Cathedral at 5 p.m. for an anniversary service.

Choir Program

The Presbyterian College choir of Clinton, S.C., will present a program of sacred music at the North Avenue Presbyterian Church at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

"Rejoice Ye Christians" will be the theme of the program. Dr. Edouard Patte is conductor of the choir. The program includes a Hammerschmidt motet, "Sing to God, O My Soul, Exult;" and Gondimel's "Psalm 68."

Alliance Meetings

The Rev. W. G. Weston will lead a series of evangelistic meetings beginning Sunday at the First Alliance Church. The Rev. Mr. Weston has been an evangelist for the Christian and Missionary Alliance for the past 25 years.

He will speak at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday through Friday and at 7:30 p.m. each Sunday through Sunday.

His son, Bill, will lead the music.

Dr. Smith To Speak

Dr. W. Thomas Smith, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, will speak at the Saturday and Sunday meeting of the Virginia Methodist Student Conference in Lynchburg, Va.

Mormon Conference

Elder John S. Longden, assistant to the Council of Twelve Apostles, will arrive in Atlanta Saturday to conduct a conference of the Atlanta State of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

The Atlanta State was formed in May and includes five major congregations in Atlanta, 2 Columbus, Empire and Macon; five branches and five Sunday School groups.

William L. Nicholls, of Atlanta, is president of the State.

This meeting is one of four sessions held each year to review reports of progress and receive counsel in spiritual and temporal affairs.

Boys Choir to Sing

The Atlanta Boys Choir will make its first appearance of the season at Rock Spring Presbyterian Church at 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

The choir, now in its fifth year, is made up of boys from nine to 14 years of age who come from 23 different churches.

The boys who are picked for the choir must maintain a certain high standard in their school work and have an innate musical ability, says George Crawford, director.

To Dedicate Church

The Episcopal Church of the Epiphany will dedicate its $85,000 church building Sunday.

The Gothic structure includes a 170-seat sanctuary, church office, Sunday school, a social hall and kitchen.

The Rt. Rev. Randolph R. Claiborne, Bishop of the Diocese of Atlanta, will administer the Order of Confirmation on new members of the church at 11 a.m.

Full, Free Forgiveness Points Way to Happiness

QUESTION: I know a married man and married woman who have been committing adultery together for several months. When they were caught up with they lied about it, but finally after much pressure they confessed, repented, and asked forgiveness. Do you think a forced confession can last?—A. M.

ANSWER: All our confessions are forced upon us in one way or another. But mere will power is not strong enough to maintain their good resolves; self-control is not a natural quality in man but a gift of the Holy Spirit. Only the power of Christ in a life is sufficient to overcome temptation.

It will help them keep from going back to this sin if they realize why God forbids it. He knows us and our circumstances—He created us—and He warns that adultery does not lead to happiness or escape from boredom or from a nagging wife or from a boorish husband, though it may sometimes seem to promise these things; He warns that it leads to misery and death.

One other thing must be said. If the injured parties in this mess, who may well share the blame for the situation, are concerned about what their own behavior as Christians should be, the Bible makes this very clear. They must forgive fully and freely, without any self-righteousness or the imposing of any trial period in which the quality of confession and repentance will be examined before it is accepted. Their own sins were freely forgiven by Christ, and similarly they must forgive those who sin against them, and give them the full measure of Christian married love as it should be at its best.

Health Hint

From the Council of Public Information of the GEORGIA CHIROPRACTIC ASS'N.

How Your Health May Be Affected By Spinal Displacements

All vital organs, glands, muscles and tissues of the body are able to function normally and remain healthy only as long as they receive normal nerve stimulus. Organs and glands suffer disturbed function; muscles and tissues are healthy or diseased according to their nerve supply.

Nerve stimulus is applied to all parts of the body by the brain and spinal cord. The spinal cord, housed within the spine, is a continuation of the brain. It is composed of 31 nerve centers, each center sharing in the control of the body. The heart is controlled by these nerve centers in the spine, so also are the lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys and all other organs.

Since the nerves branching from the spinal cord to all parts of the body must pass out between the bones of the spine, a displacement of any bone will subject nerves to pressure and irritation. It is a fact, recognized by all healing sciences, that nerve irritation impairs the function and health of the body organs or parts.

Georgia, Gators Lift SEC Cage Lid Tonight

Cabaniss, Hobbs Big Point Guns

By GEORGE CUNNINGHAM

Georgia and Florida, two teams boasting heavy-hitting outfields, match lightning-like guards Saturday night at Woodruff Hall as the 1957-58 Southeastern Conference basketball chase gets underway.

The 8 p.m. game shapes up as primarily a back-court battle with Bulldogs Ray Allen and Fred Edmondson swapping shots with Gator deadeye Joe Hobbs and scoring sidekick Charlie Pike.

Hobbs, 6-0 son of a Sheridan, Ind., high schol coach, also will be renewing old acquaintances when he tangles with Georgia center Henry Cabaniss, an "ex-teammate."

Hobbs and Cabaniss both were members of the Southeastern Conference All-Sophomore team in 1956.

Coach Johnny Mauer's hardwood Saurians survived two tune-ups handsomely this week, slapping Jacksonville Navy and Stetson.

Red Lawson's "automatic five" was derailed on the first turn by South Carolina, then righted itself to rip Clemson the next start.

Georgia's defense will be geared to stop one of the most antiquated—but accurate—shots in the book. Hobbs is one of the few remaining high scorers in the nation relying mainly on the two-hand set.

Hobbs laughed at proponents of the one-hand push last year and broke the Florida single season scoring record. He averaged better than 18 points a game.

Pike, who teamed as a sophomore with Hobbs in 1956 to wreck opposing zone defenses, was a scholastic casualty last year, but the absence apparently didn't hurt his shooting eye. Against Stetson, he bagged 17 points, second only to Hobbs' 21.

The Gators are expected to open with Jerry Henderson (6-4) and Joe Hoban (6-3) at forwards and Jimmy Zinn (6-7) at center.

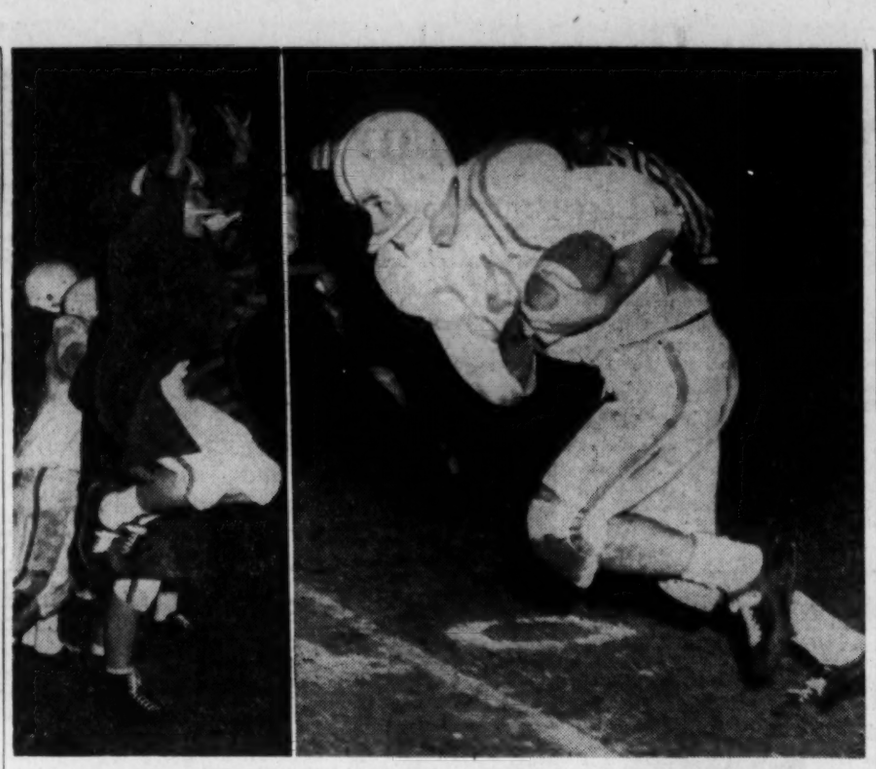

Lawson will counter by sending Cabaniss (6-5) to the pivot post, and Sonny Poss (6-3) will team with either Earl Tidwell (6-5) or Joe DuFoor (6-2) at forwards.

While Hobbs and Pike hold a slight edge in basket accuracy, Allen and Edmondson counter with an advantage in the speed department.

Through two games, Allen trailed Cabaniss by one point, 37-36, for team scoring honors. Edmondson, the "pest" to opposing teams, is third with 33 points.

Under the boards, Georgia owns an overall height advantage but yields individually to 6-7 Zinn who snared 37 rebounds in one game last year for a Florida record.

Lawson said Friday night, "if Cabaniss, Poss, Tidwell and DuFoor come up with another defensive effort similar to the Clemson game, we'll hold our own in that department."

Dealer's Choice

COLORADO SPRINGS, Dec. 6—In the crowded Broadmoor Hotel, major leaguers were lodging a charge of robbery against Honest John Quinn, the affable general manager of the Milwaukee Braves. It was late Thursday night and the five-player deal with the Chicago Cubs had started the joint buzzing.

Major league authors were reluctant to believe no cash was involved in the transaction. Milwaukee got Bob Rush, one of the better hurlers in the N.L., promising pitcher Don Kaiser and outfielder Ed Haas. In exchange, the Cubs received Douglasville's Taylor Phillips and catcher Sammy Taylor, Atlanta class of '57.

Outlar

Perhaps John Holland, the Cub generalissimo, will have the last laugh, but now they were laughing at him. Up in Room 219, headquarters for the world champions, Quinn was receiving plaudits for the trade.

"It was an even swap," he said. Phillips can become a fine pitcher, and several clubs were interested in Sammy Taylor. Rush was the key man in the trade for us. He'll help plenty, and Kaiser is a youngster who should develop. We also should develop. We also have some fine reports on Haas."

A sleepy-eyed gentleman named Fred Haney entered the room. It was obvious he was pleased over the addition of Rush to his already strong mound corps. However, Haney didn't agree that the swap was as lopsided as some insisted.

"Say what you want," Haney said, "but this Phillips could be a heckuva pitcher for the Cubs. He won only three games for us last year, but he had a good season after he came up in '56. He's got potential, and Taylor has the tools to become a catcher.

"By the way, John," Haney said and grinned at Quinn, "if you pull any more deals tonight I don't want to hear about them until tomorrow."

—Sammy Ran High with the Big League Scouts

Wid Mathews stuck his head in the door and told Quinn, "If you want me again I'll be asleep."

When there's a deal on the fire, Quinn is noted for stirring the conversational coals into the wee hours.

Wednesday had turned into Thursday with Quinn and Holland failing to reach an agreement. Then, after another huddle, Quinn negotiated the trade.

If the Cubs hadn't snatched Taylor, other clubs were eager to bargain for him. Despite a .257 average and a mediocre season at Atlanta, various scouts rendered rave notices to their front offices. Young catchers with Taylor's potential are rare, and the scouts insist he'll mature into a major league star.

Wally Shannon of the St. Louis Cardinals had an eye focused on Taylor. The Redbirds were interested in obtaining the ex-Cracker.

Across town at the Antlers Hotel, the last minutes of the 56th minor league convention were being recorded. As delegates headed home, an air of uncertainty still hung heavily over the minors.

The gap between the majors and minors has never been wider. The majors' plan for Sunday TV turned into a bitter wedge. Perhaps it has jolted the minors into much-needed unity, for they have pledged to fight. If necessary, they'll fight in court.

Greedy operators from at least five major league clubs already have signed contracts for telecasts of Sunday games. And harassed minor league operators are aware that, without the Sunday take, they can't operate.

Frank Shaughnessy, president of the American Association, was the most outspoken critic. "Those games going into minor league territory on Saturday have hurt us," he said. "A Sunday game will just about kill us. We don't want their damn money and we don't want their damn TV."

—The Southern Juggled Its Hot Potato

If the majors stamp approval on the bonus adopted by the minors, it will be a step in the right direction. I particularly like the plank calling for unrestricted draft of all players, starting with a four-year scale for the higher minors.

On the home front, the Southern Association accomplished very little here. The directors juggled the New Orleans hot potato and eventually turned down Knoxville's bid for a franchise.

Earl Mann collected a flock of rookies for the Crackers and virtually completed arrangements for spring training in Nicaragua. Mann secured approval of Milwaukee brass Thursday night. Wichita, the sparring partner at Jacksonville, will also make the Central America junket.

The Cracker chief, vitally interested in telemeter, left for the coast Thursday to explore the new medium. He's interested in putting the Crackers on a pay-as-you-look home screen.

Next year the convention will be held in Washington, but the way things are shaping up baseball will be attracting legislative attention on Capitol Hill long before the 57th meeting.

Tech Gets ACC Test Against SC Tonight

Unbeaten Jackets to Battle Lofty Gamecocks at Columbia

By RALPH GREGORY
Constitution Sports Writer

COLUMBIA, S.C., Dec. 6—Georgia Tech, undefeated against foes from two conferences, faces a darkhorse member of the South's toughest basketball league Saturday night in an 8:15 tipoff at South Carolina's University Field House.

South Carolina, member of the Atlantic Coast Conference which boasts last year's national champion North Carolina, is touted as a top choice in the ACC to challenge North Carolina's Big Four for basketball superiority.

The Gamecocks last season were finalists in the ACC tournament, losing to North Carolina's unbeaten champions after whipping Duke and Wake Forest and return all but two regulars from that team. Gone is national scoring champion Grady Wallace and guard Bobby McCoy, but a transfer student from Kentucky is expected to take up the scoring slack.

Dickie Prater, the newcomer who led Kentucky's freshman scoring several seasons ago, teams with junior Cookie Pericola at guard to furnish the main S.C. scoring punch. Prater has been called by Wallace "the best shot I ever saw" and hit 5 for 7 from the floor in his first varsity game.

Pericola, the playmaker, had 28 points in a 95-87 victory over Georgia in the season's first game. He's the steadying influence on this year's team, averaged 15 points a game last season.

Tech, too, is expected to rely on its guards for most of the scoring punch. In running over Davidson of the Southern Conference and Alabama of the Southeastern, Terry Randall and Bud Blemker have kept up the gunning that made them last year's top Tech scorers. The two, sophomores in 1956, led Tech to an 18-8 record, best basketball season in Tech history.

South Carolina has better height. Junior center Fred Lentz is 6-8, tallest of the starters. But sophomores Mike Callahan (6-6), a forward, and Bob Frantz (6-7), a center and forward, keep the height average up. Prater is 6-3 and Pericola 6-2. Walt Hudson, a forward who generally starts, is 6-5, and twin brother Bury is also 6-5.

Tech's tallest starters will be center Frank Inman and forward Jim Johnson, both 6-6. The other three regulars, Blemker, Randall and forward Gary Phillips, are 5-10, 5-10 and 6-1, respectively.

South Carolina won last year's game between the two, 90-83, at Tech's Alexander Memorial Coliseum, but Tech holds the series edge, 15-9.

MARIETTA'S ROGER SENTER GETS OFF PUNT FROM END ZONE

Ferguson Runs, Jones Jars, Northside Claims Crown, 6-0

58-Yard Punt Return Sinks Marietta in N. Georgia AAA

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

The patter of John Ferguson's big feet, his boarding house reach and Rusty Jones' utter disregard for personal safety staked Northside High's football Tigers to a hard-earned 6-0 triumph over Marietta and the North Georgia AAA championship Friday night.

A stunned crowd of 5,000 Grady Stadium pew sitters, most of whom had underrated Coach French Johnson's invading Blue Devils from 20 miles upstate, were prepared to settle for a scoreless tie until dapper John planted his size 10-E cleated brogans in the end zone with the reckless aid of this one of the Jones boys when only five minutes and 44 seconds remained in the game.

It happened this way: End Roger Senter, Marietta's sterling punter, sliced a boot off the side of his foot. Ferguson, an all-state end who often plays deep on punting and passing situations because he is one of the City League's fastest runners, grabbed the low punt 10 yards in from the sideline on the press box side of the field. Running like a Dead End kid a shirttail ahead of the cops, he never stopped or wavered his sideline course until he was in the end zone 58 yards downfield.

Tackle Jones, a 196-pound sophomore who is already a great one, let fly with a vicious block at the Marietta 32. Two blue-clad Blue Devils, the last two that had a chance to get Ferguson, were cut down as if by a human scythe. They carried Jones off the field on a stretcher, but his big job was done. And it developed his injury was very minor.

But these Imps were not through. They came to win and gave it a good try. Fullback Lee Broadhurst latched onto Bill Tidmore's subsequent kickoff and slashed back upfield 32 yards to the Marietta 43. From there, Don Rhymer, Dan Phillips and Broadhurst smashed out four successive first downs and 36 yards to the Northside 21 with 1:28 left on the clock.

The Devils had a chance to win, because Stan Gann's extra point try had been blocked by all-state tackle Wyndell Black after a Marietta offsides gave him a second chance. And so they took to the air to try for a touchdown. Here's where Ferguson's boarding house reach came in handy. Neil Barefield fired what might have been a touchdown strike, but Ferguson reached high and pulled it down with one hand at the Northside three-yard stripe, then set sail on a 24-yard runback to the Northside 27.

Gann sneaked out a first down from there, and a 15-yard personal foul tax on Marietta put

Cincinnati Trades Post To Phillies for Haddix

Harvey Becomes Fifth Pitcher Acquired By Redlegs at Colorado Springs Meeting

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Dec. 6 (AP)—The Cincinnati Redlegs tonight traded outfielder Wally Post to the Philadelphia Phillies for lefthanded pitcher Harvey Haddix.

It marked the second trade in two days for the Redlegs, who have been talking swaps to all National League Clubs in an effort to strengthen their pitching staff.

Haddix, 32, won 10 and lost 13 games with the Phillies last year. He had a 4.05 earned run average, completing 8 of 27 starts.

Post, regular right fielder on the Redlegs since 1953, batted only .244 last season. A long ball right-handed hitter, the 28-year-old native of St. Henry, Ohio, hit 20 home runs and drove in 74 runs.

Haddix, who came to the Phillies in a trade with St. Louis in May of 1956, was up among the leaders with 132 strikeouts, walking only 39 in 136 innings. His best year was in 1953, when he won 20 games and lost nine in his first full year with the Cardinals.

Post's best year was in 1955 when he batted .309, slugged 40 home runs and drove in 109 runs.

Haddix became the fifth pitcher acquired by the Reds in the last three days at the baseball convention here.

Yesterday the Reds obtained right handers Willard Schmidt, Marty Kutyna and Ted Wieand, acquired from St. Louis Cards in a trade that sent outfielders Joe Taylor and Curtis Flood to the Cardinals.

On Wednesday the Reds purchased southpaw Bill Wight from Baltimore.

Giants Add Wes Westrum

COLORADO SPRINGS, Dec. 6 (AP)—The San Francisco Giants announced today they had added Wes Westrum and Francis J. (Salty) Parker to their coaching staff.

The pair joined Herman Franks, who was named third-base coach several days ago.

Westrum who has been a Giant catcher since 1947, will be retired as an active player. Parker, a veteran minor league manager for the past 10 years has spent the last three years in the Giants organization. He led the Dallas Club to a Texas League pennant last season. He currently is managing the Escogido Club in the Dominican League. This makes a complete change in the Giant coaching picture. Last year the Giant coaches were Bucky Walters, Tommy Henrich and Davey Williams.

Big Leagues Vote To Kill Bonus Rule

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Dec. 6 (AP)—The American and National Leagues, in separate meetings today, voted to scrap the bonus rule and to establish a four-year player draft.

The action ratified similar decisions of the minor leagues yesterday.

The American Loop voted to make the bonus rule retroactive. This would free nine so-called bonus players in the junior circuit.

But the National League voted to require the 12 bonus players in that league to finish out their status as bonus players.

The bonus law adopted five years ago has required that players signed to their first contract for more than $4,000 must be retained on the major club's roster for at least two years.

Women Jury Clears Lion Layne

DETROIT, Dec. 6 (AP)—Bobby Layne tonight was found innocent of a drunk driving charge in Detroit Traffic Court.

Bobby Layne

A jury of 11 women and one man deliberated only 24 minutes before finding the Detroit Lions' veteran quarterback innocent. A loud cheer went up when the verdict was announced.

The 30-year-old Layne elatedly left the courtroom surrounded by well-wishers. He said, "This was worse than any ball game I've ever been in."

Testifying in his own defense, the 200-pound, handsome, blond football star denied that he was intoxicated at the time of his arrest in downtown Detroit at 2 a.m. Sept. 17.

At the same time, Layne acknowledged that he had had "about six Scotches with water" in a Detroit bar owned by former Detroit Lions' lineman Les Bingaman.

Layne told the jury his driving was not impaired by the drinks when two scout car patrolmen ordered him to pull his car to the curb because the head lamps were not turned on.

Patrolmen Lemmie Pratt and Donald Osborne testified that Layne's speech was slurred and his face was flushed at the time of the arrest.

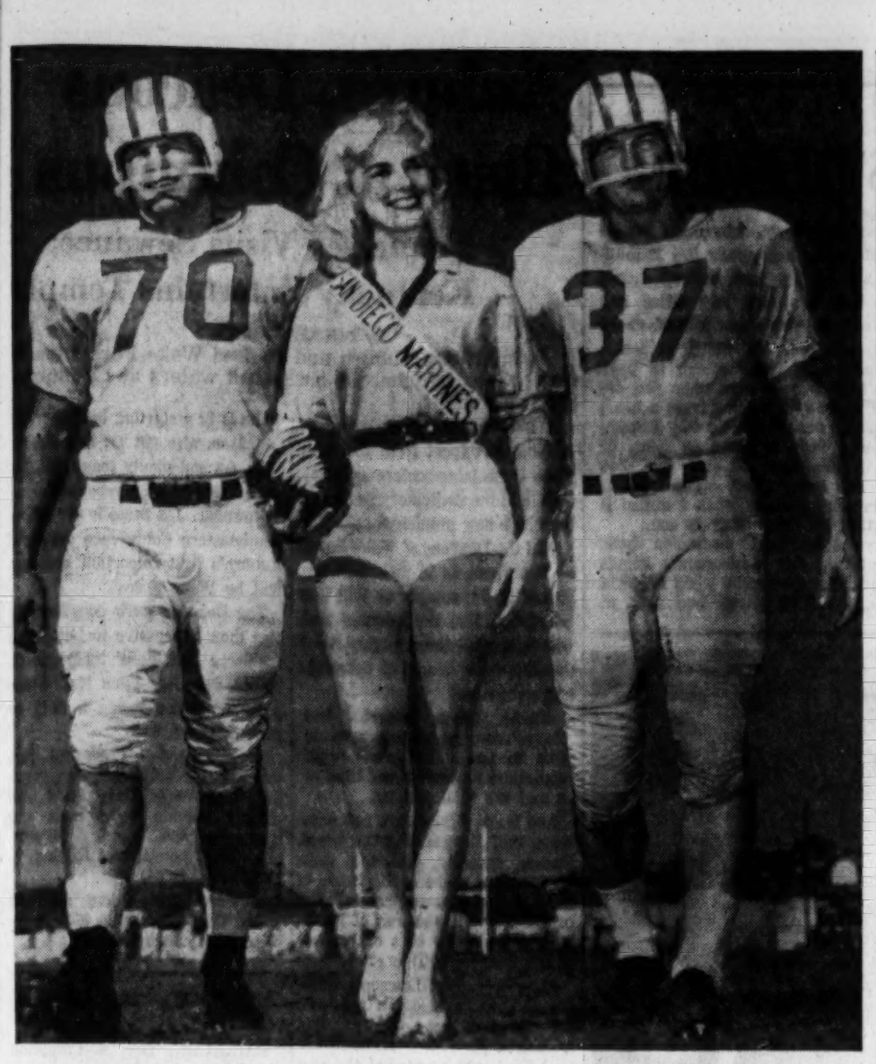

Cross examining the patrolmen, defense attorney Joseph W. Louisell asked them if they were familiar with a "Texas drawl." Layne is a Texan.

The patrolmen said they were. Louisell commented that a Texan's normal speech might be mistaken for the slurred speech of an intoxicated person.

Patrolman Pratt testified that Layne used his fingers to "poke" him as they talked outside the car after the arrest.

Layne told the jury, "Yes, I probably tapped him but I don't consider it a poke."

Forest Park Rally Nips N. Habersham

Panthers' Last Half Scores Nab N. Georgia A Title, 14-7

By RED MULLINS

Forest Park's Panthers pushed over two second-half touchdowns to come from behind and edge North Habersham, 14-7, Friday night for the North Georgia Class A football championship.

A capacity crowd watched the Panthers rally on their home field to beat the rugged Bobcats from North Georgia.

The Panthers spotted the Bobcats a first half touchdown before they could hit the scoring column. It was set up by Wayne Loggins' 20 yard run to the Forest Park 35. One play later quarterback Sosebee hit end Ed Nichols for 33 yards and the score. Charles Burke place-kicked the point.

After a scoreless second quarter, the Panthers began to roll after intermission. They dominated the second half.

Coach Albert Patterson's Panthers pushed over scores in the third and fourth quarters. They got the first after center Johnny Mauldin intercepted Sosebee's pass on the Bobcat 26 with 3:51 remaining in the third period.

They scored in six plays, with halfback Donald Cook plunging from the one. Johnny Formby ran across the point, and it was tied up, 7-7.

After the Bobcats had marched to the Forest Park 16, where Burke missed a field goal, the Panthers took the ball and carried all the way down the field. From the 27, with North Habersham expecting a pass, Formby scooted 27 yards on the quarterback keep for the winning TD. Donald Fincher ran for the point with 5:05 remaining.

Patterson praised the defensive play of senior tackle Norman Hale, tackle Larry Foster, guard Jack Aaron and all-state end Barry Billington. Bobcat coach Dexter Poss singled out tackle Marsh Earwood, guard Pete Porter.

Loggins and Roy Thrasher led the ground gainers for North Habersham, along with Sosebee. Cook, Formby and Fincher starred for the winners.

Rockmarters Turn Error Into Title

Yellow Jackets Cash Brooks And Deck Avondale, 13 6

By PAUL ATKINSON
Constitution Sports Writer

ROCKMART, Dec. 6—Rockmart's greedy Yellow Jackets gobbled up everything that Avondale threw at them, and this greediness on the part of J. Y. Nash's club brought this city the North Georgia Class AA football championship, 13-6.

There was no doubt the title belonged here. A partisan crowd of 5,000 watched the Jackets control the ball on 64 snaps to 25, out-offense the visitors, 271-49, and just generally prove on this night the vastly superior squad.

The rapier-like thrust of halfbacks Tommy Young and Jerry Irwin and fullback Otis Morgan, and the smart play barking of quarterback Allen Bullard did it. Up front, it was ends Wayne Forrester and Joe Anderson, guards Ralph Jenkins and Jerome Parham and center Charles Wright who cleared the way.

Irwin led the night's rush chart with 99 yards in 19 carries; Morgan had 85 on 15; and Young, 56 on 13.

Nash singled out particularly Parham for his defensive work. The chunky little guard recoverd one fumble that set up a touchdown and fell on another that helped considerably.

Bullard, engineering a 46-yard second-quarter jag, got the touchdown himself that tied it, 6-6. Jit (the Jet) Reinhardt had scored in the first quarter on a 39-yard runback of a fumble. Young's point after got a 7-6 lead that stood for three quarters.

Morgan got the other touchdown, coming from 12 yards out late in the last period.

Reinhardt was upper man on a short Avondale "totem" pole. He lugged for 25 yards in seven efforts, and fullback Bill Dahlberg gained 17 in a similar number. Dahlberg, tackle Stanley Bell and end Billy Deal did a good deal of tackling.

Jit the Jet provided all the Avondale fireworks in one fell swoop. Morgan, engrossed in gaining a yard, forgot to carry the ball with him, and alert Reinhardt scooped it up at the Rockmart 39-yard line, then turned on the front burner to score unhindered at 8:11 of the initial stanza.

Dahlberg kicked the point . . . or seemingly did. A five-yard penalty, however, nullified his good work, and a second kick from seven yards back was wide, to the left.

These Yellow Jackets had 46 yards of speed left for the second period. Irwin got the largest chunk, the 17-yard gainer that put it first-and-ten at the Avondale 15.

Here Avondale momentarily braced. But on a fourth-and-seven at the 12, Bullard kept for a key eight yards. Young hit for two, then Bullard sneaked in for the six points at 8:26 of the quarter. Young boomed the point through for a precious 7-6 advantage.

A bobble set up Rockmart's other touchdown. Halfback Neil Passmore fumbled at his 32-yard line, and Parham claimed it there.

Here came the bit-by-bit grinding. Morgan slammed for three five-yard slices to the 15. Bullard sneaked for three, and a first down at the 12. Morgan finished it all off with a quickie off left tackle for the touchdown at 8:30 of the fourth quarter.

Young's point after was low, but it mattered little to the North Georgia champions.

Rockmart	0	7	0	6—13
Avondale	6	0	0	0—6

Rockmart scoring: Touchdowns—Bullard (2, run); Morgan (12, run). PAT—Young (placement).

Avondale scoring: Touchdowns—Reinhardt (39, runback of fumble).

THIS TECH BANKER HAS EYES ON A MONEY MAN

By the Associated Press

A Macon boy today had the backing of an Atlanta banker for a good job in a Macon bank.

Freeman Strickland, senior vice president of the First National Bank, staunch Georgia Tech alumnus and a member of the Board of Regents, made the recommendation.

Theron Sapp

"I had occasion to see a young man Saturday afternoon whom I think is entitled to immediate employment in one of the finer operations of Macon, such as your bank," Strickland wrote the Macon bank executive.

"While this boy is only a junior in college, I think it imperative that he enter the channels of business before next fall and I urge your sincere interest in his behalf. He will make you or some other employer a mighty good man."

The boy Strickland wants shifted to the Macon business field is Theron Sapp, sparkplug of the University of Georgia's victory over Georgia Tech here last Saturday.

Trion's Day and Daniels Run Over Tucker, 39-13

Halfbacks Lead Awesome Ground Attack That Gives Bulldogs N. Georgia B Crown

By MICKEY McCARTHY
Special to The Constitution

TRION, Dec. 6—Unbeaten Trion High unleashed a covey of fleet backs to roll to an impressive 39-13 triumph over Tucker here Friday night. The win gave Sam McCain's Bulldogs the Class B North Georgia championship.

Gary Daniel and Ken Day were the sparkplugs in the potent offense which chalked up 354 yards rushing. Daniel tallied on runs of 51 and seven yards, while Day got touchdowns of 32 and four.

The lopsided triumph sends Trion into the lists against the South Georgia King, Vidalia, for the state B crown next week.

The semi-final plateau was the hurdle that caused Trion to stumble last season. But Tucker was not to enjoy the same success achieved by Snooks Saye's Morgan County boys a year ago.

Trion scored midway in the first quarter with Bradley Watson racing 24 yards. The Bulldogs put the game on ice with three second period markers.

Day bulled for four yards to set off the fireworks. Taking advantage of a mental lapse by the Tigers, quarterback Lawayne Powell picked up an uncovered punt and streaked 54 yards untouched.

Daniel culminated a 30-yard drive with a seven-yard run to provide a 27-0 margin at intermission.

Day reentered the scoring act act in the third period with a 32-yard burst up the middle.

Buddy Barrett, Tucker's junior signal caller, supplied the Tigers with two third quarter scores. Barrett wheeled 63 yards on the option play for Tucker's initial tally. Moments later, with Barrett faking superbly on the keep play, he circled ends from seven yards out for the second touchdown.

Late in the third period Daniel broke loose on a 51-yard scamper to make it 39-13.

Coach McCain lauded the great defensive effort of his starting line.

Tackles Jimmy Styles and Richard Watson in particular made yardage tough for the invaders.

Crax Add 4 Hurlers, Increase Roster to 34

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Dec. 6—Californian Mike Dalton, the tall right-hander with the low pitch, will get another shot with the Atlanta Crackers next spring.

Young Dalton, who impressed Manager Buddy Bates more than any other right-hander during the '57 exhibition games, gets his second tryout with the Crackers. He earned it on an 8-6 season with Evansville.

Bates was reluctant to part with Dalton last season. "I'm sending him out only because he needs the experience," said Bates at the time.

Owner-president Earl Mann of the Crackers announced acquisition of three left-handed pitchers, in addition to Dalton, as the minor league convention ended Friday.

They are Dale Hendrickson, 8-2 at Evansville; Fred Hoffman, 4-2 at Eau Claire, and Bob Lee, 12-6 at Evansville.

Hendrickson of Gering, Neb., has previous 21-8 (Lawson) and 11-2 (Evansville) seasons. Hoffman got his professional start at Evansville, and was 2-5 with Waycross in '56. He comes from Philadelphia. Lee hails from Kenosha, Wisc., hometown of '57 Cracker lefty Bob Hartman.

Bates now has a roster of 34, including 10 veterans and nine rookies.—OUTLAR

SHOOT WITH GUN OR CAMERA -- THE REWARD'S STILL BIG

By CHARLES ELLIOTT
Constitution Outdoor Columnist

It is rather unusual that within the last week, two fellows have asked me the same rather odd question—that if I had to choose between a gun in the woods, and a camera, which would I leave at home. What struck me as odd was my same thought in each instance — that they must have been looking at some of those photos I occasionally try to make, and wondered why I didn't stick exclusively to the gun.

Charles Elliott

How can you answer a question like that? I generally tote along both my gun and camera and would hate to be without either. If we jump a grizzly and he runs my guide or partner up a tree, it makes a great picture. But if he lathers his lips and starts for me, there ain't a doggone thing about it funny enough to record on film.

I'm glad I don't have to select any piece of equipment to take the place of my camera. No person who spends much time in the outdoors should be without one. The pictures he makes not only can be used to annoy friends and relatives—they are as much a trophy of any outdoor trip as the big game head hung on his den wall. After I get through boring people with a set of photographs, I often dig them out of the file and look at them when I'm alone, and enjoy my outdoor experience all over again.

In my business of looking for outdoor adventures, for hidden corners on the top side of the earth where the best fishing or hunting waits to be discovered, a camera is a necessity. There are also times when it's a nuisance. My partner in the boat gets bass after jumping bass on his line, and while I'm trying to snap enough pictures to go with a story, I drool and wish it was him taking pictures instead of me. And then sometimes I keep a rod or gun in my hands instead of the lens trigger, and for weeks afterward mentally kick my own hip pockets because I didn't make good photo sequences when I had the chance.

So many good cameras are on the market, that recommending one is like suggesting what kind of belt you should wear to hold up your hunting britches. The prices range from a few bux to something that reads like a government defense contract. I prefer the less expensive cameras for several reasons, not the least of which is the price. Almost any box will make good pictures, if you'll study the instructions and then experiment with it before you go on that hunting or fishing trip of a lifetime.

Most outdoorsmen I know, who make photos for their own pleasure, use either the 35-millimeter, or the 2¼ by 2¼ inch colored transparency. These can be made into slides and projected on a screen. The more a clear-sharp transparency is enlarged, the better it looks. And a small camera is much easier to pack along and doesn't get in your way when you are snagging a prize salmon or running from a bear.

For years I hauled around a huge 4 by 5 Speed Graphic. Whether I rode a horse or boat, or simply walked in the woods, I had that box hanging on me like a carton of scrap iron. It made some marvelous pictures when I aimed it in the right direction, but I earned every one.

All this very un-technical discussion boils down to the fact that any outdoorsman brings much more home from the woods when he's got his picture-taking machine along, and uses it.

Hunter's Wife Passes Buck, Kills 8-Pointer

WILLARD, Md., Dec. 6 (AP). Last Tuesday Edwin Massey, who has a farm near this Wicomico County town, went deer hunting. After a day-long outing he came back with a nice 145-pound buck.

This morning his wife went out to the poultry house. There beside the shed stood an eight-point buck. She hurried back to the house, got her husband's rifle and killed the deer with her first shot.

Her deer outweighed her husband's by one pound.

Pittsburgh Six-Point Favorite Over Lightweight Miamians

Gustafson, Michelson Look For Lines to Settle Winner

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP)—The University of Pittsburgh was rated a six-point favorite over the University of Miami today as the football teams prepared for tomorrow afternoon's clash in the Orange Bowl.

Both squads tapered off with light workouts. Miami, outweighed by about 25 pounds per man, has been concentrating on passing and is expected to abandon its usual reliance on its ground game.

The game, which begins at 4 p.m. (EST), will be televised by NBC.

Both Miami Coach Andy Gustafson and Pittsburgh Coach John Michelosen agreed line play is likely to be the deciding factor in the game.

"The team with the toughest line will win this one," Michelosen said.

The Pitt Panthers appeared pleased with the opportunity to practice outdoors.

"The weather's been so bad at home that we had to work indoors for the past two days," said Coach Michelosen. "You can't kick or pass in a field house."

Miami has won four this season, lost four and tied one. Pitt has a record of four victories and five defeats.

SMU Hopes Low For Irish Upset

DALLAS, Dec. 6 (AP)—Southern Methodist, which usually does its best in intersectional football especially when it's the underdog to Notre Dame, faces the Irish tomorrow with its chances considered as low as any time in the colorful series.

Crippled and still shocked by a 21-0 defeat at the hands of Texas Christian, SMU meets a Notre Dame that's flying high with its great upset of mighty Oklahoma and driving for a great windup of an unexpectedly fine season.

These are the Irish, who stumbled to a 2-8 disaster last year, with Southern Methodist rendering the first blow. They are the first team to beat Oklahoma over a four-year span.

But Southern Methodist, with its spread formation that has sophomore passing star Don Meredith as the key, is something to worry about, decided Notre Dame coach Terry Brennan.

"We've got to get going or we'll be run out of the stadium," were Brennan's words as he brought his Irish into Dallas for some pre-game workouts.

The tall sophomore was given his come uppance by Texas Christian which harried him with a wave of rushers. And Notre Dame scouts saw it all. Brennan indicated he would try the same tactics in an effort to halt Meredith's aerial forays. The SMU quarterback has completed 64 passes in 87 attempts thus far.

THE HARD WAY—STATE LINE, Pa., Dec. 6—Albert Barkdoo, who lost both arms six years ago when he grabbed a "live wire" while working on a power line, poses with the deer he shot on a hunting trip recently. Determined to hunt again, Barkdoll had a "cineplastic tunnel" made in his chest by plastic surgery. A metal hook in this tunnel is attached to a cable leading to a special trigger on his .44 Magnum pistol, which is affixed to the wrist of his artificial arm. He fires the gun by flexing a chest muscle.

EMORY FRATS CLASH IN 'DUCKLESS BOWL'

Emory's Duck Bowl has lost its duck this year, but the annual fraternity football battle is scheduled as usual Saturday at 2 p.m.

Sigma Nu and Chi Phi meet in this year's battle at Emory's lower athletic field, complete with head on tackling, cheerleaders and a special appearance by Miss Georgia, Jody Shattuck.

Chi Phi replaces Pi Kappa Alpha as the Sigma Nu opponent, PiKA, which had met Sigma Nu annually since 1931, stepped aside for Chi Phi because of limited membership.

The game began as a challenge match with the losing fraternity treating the winner to a duck dinner. This year the duck dinner has been cancelled, but the two fraternities will celebrate with a joint party Saturday night.

The Sigma Nu team is coached by Dudley DeGroot, the Chi Phis by Dan Adams. Sigma Nu won over PiKA last year, 14-0.

Giants Meet Steelers In 'Must' Game Today

Loss Would Oust New Yorkers From National Football Loop Race

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 6 (AP)—It will be do or die for the New York Giants at Forbes Field tomorrow.

They meet the Pittsburgh Steelers in a game that is all-important to the Giants. If they lose they will be out of the running for the Eastern Conference title of the National Football League.

Even if they win, the second-place Giants won't be sure of how they stand until after the Cleveland Browns and Detroit Lions game at Detroit on Sunday.

The Browns, leading the Eastern Conference race, can cinch the title with a victory. A Giant victory and a Cleveland loss would find the two teams facing each other with the title at stake in their game on Sunday, Dec. 15, in New York.

A crowd of 25,000 is expected for the Giant-Steeler clash tomorrow. Thousands more will see the game on a national television hookup (CBS, 1:05 p.m, EST).

The weather picture looks pretty dismal. Intermittent showers fell in Pittsburgh today, and the Weather Bureau says there will be more and heavier rain tomorrow.

The Giants arrived in Pittsburgh by train this morning and worked out this afternoon.

Tennessee State Plays Morehouse for Crown

Defending National Athletic Intercollegiate Association basketball titlist Tennessee State bruised Morris Brown, 96-43, here Friday night to enter the finals of the Georgia Invitational Tournament along with Atlanta's Morehouse College.

Morehouse followed Lee Bynum's 19 points to a semifinal victory over arch-city rival Clark, 51-49.

The rangy Tennesseans, fielding a first five averaging 6-6, never were threatened by the Atlanta collegians and held a 54-22 advantage at halftime. Forward John Barnhill led the basket bombardment with 22 points.

In consolation games, Benedict of Columbia, S. C., blasted Albany State, 81-49, and Winston Salem, N. C., Teachers outrattled Florida A & M, 80-73.

Morehouse and Tennessee clash at the Booker T. Washington gym at 9 p.m. Saturday night for the title. Clark and Morris Brown meet at 7:30 p.m. for third place, and Benedict challenges Winston Salem at 6 p.m. for the fifth spot.

Auburn, Deacons Clash at Columbus

Tennessee Visits Sewanee; Kentucky Entertains Temple

By MICKEY LOGUE

Ambitious Auburn and bruised Wake Forest wade warily into treacherous basketball waters at Columbus Saturday night.

Neither can be in the least sure of what to expect from the other when these inter-conference rivals collide in the dedicatory match for the city's new municipal coliseum.

Will the Deacons of Wake Forest be lukewarm as in their first two games of the season, or will they be redhot, like the talented boys who nearly blistered mighty North Carolina on a couple of occasions last campaign?

These things Coach Joel Eaves' Auburn hoopsters would like to know, but won't until sometime between tipoff time at 8 and the final whistle.

And Wake Forest, too, has questions. Will Auburn have the speed, finesse, shooting, etc., that gave the Deacs a scare in the finals of the Carousel Tournament last December, or will the loss of Henry Hart make tabby cats out of last year's dangerous Tigers?

Elsewhere, Red Lawson's Georgia Bulldogs roll out a welcome mat that they hope will turn into a banana peel for Florida in the first SEC cage counter of the season.

Other games featuring league teams find tall Tennessee at little Sewanee, Southwestern U. at Mississippi State, Temple at Kentucky, rebounding Alabama at always-strong Louisville, Tampa at Tulane, powerful Minnesota at Vanderbilt and Georgia Tech at South Carolina.

Senior Bobby Tucker and sophomore Bayward McManus of Hamilton scored eight each against Jacksonville State, playing the role that Hart would have filled had a knee operation not sidelined him. Eaves is hopeful this tandem can shoulder much of the load left by Hart's absence.

Juniors Rex Frederick, 6-5 captain-forward, and guard Jimmy Lee lead Auburn into Saturday's showdown. It will be homecoming for Lee, who served as key point-getter on several great Baker High teams, including one state championship club.

Lee netted 13 points in the belting of Jax State, Frederick 11 and sophomore forward Shot Johnson 11. Terry Chandler, who is in a starting debate with Johnson, also got 11. Bill Gregory, 6-8 and plenty tough, hit 14 and grabbed nine rebounds.

However, Jax State is far below Southeastern Conference par, and Auburn's first important obstacle will be Wake Forest.

The Deacons were considerably less than impressive in beating a mediocre Davidson team seven points, but they gave N.C. State a tussle before losing a duel of zone defenses, 62-51.

Senior Wendell Carr, 6-3 forward, is the only returning regular. Sophomores Dave Budd and George Ritchie have been the leading scorers. Budd, a 6-6 center, has 28 points, and Ritchie, 5-11, guard has 24.

Forward Dickie Odom (6-6) and guard Olin Broadway (6-3) complete the Deacon lineup.

PHILLIPS, TAYLOR PLANS: KEEP MILWAUKEE HOPPING

By AL THOMY

Lives are constantly transplanted in the greatest juggling act of all . . . baseball.

Here today and gone to Chicago tomorrow. That's baseball, and that's current status of two of the game's youngest and brightest stars, pitcher Taylor Phillips of Douglasville and catcher Sammy Taylor of Atlanta and Woodruff, S.C., both former Atlanta Crackers.

SAMMY TAYLOR
Short Cut to Majors?

Of the two, Phillips, Milwaukee's rookie of the year in '56 and tabbed a future star, had more reason for bitterness. The Braves were on top of the baseball world with the best yet to come, or so say the experts. An $8,000 World Series check had just been deposited in the bank. His old favorite, Whitlow Wyatt, had been named Braves' pitching coach. So much to look forward to.

Phillips took the trade with the resignation of an old pro.

"I told my sister last night I'd be glad when this convention in Colorado Springs was over," said Taylor from his Douglasville home. "I had a feeling this was coming up. But that's baseball.

"Things may turn out to be just as good, or better. I'm looking forward to playing with the Cubs. Their shortage of left-handers gives me an open shot at a starting job, and I think I can make it. They'll get my best.

"You know, ever since I can remember, even when I was in high school, I've read where Bob Rush was going to be traded. I never dreamed I'd be the one he's traded for.

"Baseball isn't operated on sentiment.

"I'll be trying that much harder . . . and I'll be bustin' myself to beat those Braves."

Catcher Taylor, who dipped to .257 with the Crackers of '57, expressed no regret. His answers were quick and optimistic.

"A real break for me," he said. "I've been trying for a long time to get out of the Milwaukee organization. Just look at the major league roster, Crandall, Rice and Sawatski, all good catchers. When they signed this rookie (Bill) Taylor for a $100,000 they knocked a hole in my head."

Sammy paused for a puff on his stogie.

"Sure, I had a bad year here but I've never had so many injuries, a finger broken twice, bum leg and foul tips in the throat. You've got to have confidence in this game, and I believe I can go all the way. There's only one place to play—the major leagues.

"I believe it's a good break for Phillips, too. He'll be a starter with the Cubs. The Cubs seem to be getting quite a few players, and maybe we'll be a contender. It would be nice to form the battery with Phillips.

"And like Phillips, if I'm up there, I'm going to be bustin' myself to beat the Braves."

Taylor keeps in catching trim by working for a local trucking concern.

Both agree there's no sentiment in baseball . . . and they're asking for no sympathy.

NORTHSIDE

the ball on the Marietta 44. Gann faded back and let himself be tackled for an eight-yard loss at the Northside 48. Time ran out and Northside was in.

This had been a rugged defensive battle all the way. Marietta had never been able to make any kind of a scoring threat so savage was the up-front play of Northside's Jesse Samples, Paul Holmes, Keith Foster, Roy Roberts and Jack Sharp and so sharp had been the secondary tackling of Matt Howard and Stan Gann.

Every ground thrust by Northside, which would have won handily had a tie forced the use of the penetration system, was blunted by the tremendous linebacking of Joe Kozloski, a 5-4, 170-pound guard, and up-front mates Black, Ronnie Camp, Senter, Gene Davenport, James Camp and Black. And four of Gann's potential touchdown passes were dropped by usually gluefingered targets.

Kozloski made 16 individual tackles, 10 in the first half. Black made seven, Ronnie Camp and Senter six each, Davenport five, back Dan Phillips four. Tackle Samples led Northside with 10. Holmes and Howard made eight each, Jones and Gann seven apiece.

Ben Ferguson, with 51 yards on nine lugs and a 5.7 yards-per-try average, and Howard, with 42 on 10 and 4.2, were Northside chief gainers. Broadhurst picked up 55 on 15 lugs, a 3.7 average, for Marietta. Charles Stokes streaked 51 on 5 carries.

Northside will now play Columbus, which downed Benedictine for the South Georgia AAA crown, 27-7, for the state title at 7:30 next Friday night at Grady Stadium.

CUBS DEFEND DEAL

Grimm: Phillips Terrific, Taylor Swings Bat

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Dec. 6 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs today defended their swap of veteran pitcher Bob Rush to the world champion Milwaukee Braves as the best deal they could make.

The National League rivals generally were amazed and a few chagrined at yesterday's trade of Rush and two other Cubs for pitcher Taylor Phillips and catcher Sam Taylor, Bruin brass disagreed they were fleeced as some insisted.

However, Manager Bill Rigney of the San Francisco Giants contended the Cubs rejected an offer of five players, including Bobby Thomson, Whitey Lockman and Ossie Virgil, in a deal involving Rush.

Cub vice president Charlie Grimm indicated he may have been a deciding factor in the deal. "I had Phillips in Milwaukee," said the former Braves' manager. "We haven't had an adequate starting lefthander since Paul Minner. This Phillips is terrific. He was a great relief pitcher for Milwaukee two years ago and last year he was 3-2, but they (the Braves) didn't make much use of him."

"As for Taylor," continued Grimm, "He can swing that bat. He hit only .257 at Atlanta but he had 12 homers and 87 RBI's. He's a big leaguer with the bat right now, though he needs polishing as a catcher."

Grimm commented "You'd be surprised at the lack of interest in Rush."

Pitcher Don Kaiser, 21, who went with Rush and outfielder Eddie Haas to the Braves, disclosed at his home in Ada, Okla., today he had been notified to report for military service Dec. 12

ACC Adopts Grants Defers Bowl Policy

Warmath on Arkansas List; End to Dickens' Ban Sought

From Press Dispatches

Atlantic Coast Conference members Friday voted to honor their grants-in-aid agreements and deferred until their May meeting formation of a post-season bowl policy.

The athletic grants-in-aid issue, long a bone of contention, passed surprisingly after it appeared doomed to failure once more.

The 6-2 vote in favor of setting up the program, effective July 1, came after Virginia, one of three holdouts, swung to the affirmative. Maryland and South Carolina remained in opposition.

The Gamecocks withdrew their proposal to throw open NCAA-approved football bowl games to all conference members. The matter will be taken up more fully at the spring meeting.

Sports in Brief

MORE FOOTBALL — Indiana's faculty athletic committee authorized its representative, Prof. John Mee, to ask the Big Ten to permit the school to lift Coach Phil Dickens' suspension. This is an attempt to recover Dickens' services before spring training. . . . Arkansas officials said Minnesota's head coach, Murray Warmath, probably would be one of four coaches whose names will be submitted to the board of trustees as candidates for the Razorback vacancy. . . . Fourteen fatal injuries were sustained among 660,000 high school football players in 1957. . . . Ohio State halfback ace Don Clark reinjured a groin muscle and collapsed in extreme pain on the practice field. . . . Virginia linemen Jim Keyser and Harold Outten will play for the South in North-South Game at Miami. . . Earle Edwards, who led N. C. State to an ACC championship, has been chosen conference football coach of the year.

Williams Not to Fill Posts of Retiring 36

By BRUCE GALPHIN

Commissioner T. V. Williams announced Friday he will not replace 36 revenue department employes retiring this month and in January.

Williams estimated the department will save approximately $10,000 a month as a result of the cutback.

The reduction apparently stems from Gov. Griffin's call for less state spending.

Eight days ago, the governor ordered state department heads to cut spending voluntarily or face an across-the-board percentage slicing of budgets.

Most of the three dozen employes were 65 or older, Williams said. A large number are under the state employes' retirement system and some covered by social security, the commissioner added.

In a few cases, Williams said, employes were under 65 but were in poor health. These will receive partial retirement payments, he said.

Among those retiring, the commissioner announced, were Dr. S. H. Wilson, director of the fuel oil division and a department employe for 51 years; Lee S. Radford, assistant director of the income tax division, and V. M. Womack, former director of the motor fuel unit.

Revenue department budget in the recently concluded fiscal year was $5,657,292.02. The savings on the 36 salaries would respresent about two per cent of this total.

MAJORETTES NEARLY STOLE THE SHOW AT ANNUAL GIRLS' GAME

Billy Carr (left) Strutted for Whites; Tony Peal for Greens

CO-EDS PROVIDED THRILLS A MINUTE AT FIFTH ANNUAL O'KEEFE SENIOR CLASSIC

Kick Is Blocked Despite Judy Robinson's Efforts

Hairpulling Tactics Liven Annual Football Fracas

By MARGARET McLEMORE

The school officials at O'Keefe High School knew what they were doing when they sponsored an all-girl football team.

The annual game—this year's was the fifth one—is played only by seniors.

Otherwise, chances are strong the "classic" battle between the "Whites" and the "Greens" would not be an annual fracas.

Why? Well, the coaches, the referees, the cheerleaders and the majorettes, claimed they'd never do it again.

And the players were so mad at each other, the coaches and the referees that they vowed the same.

"JUST TEASING"

Of course, five seconds later, all confessed they were "just teasing." Most of the anger was "in fun," and the frenzied yelling of the coaches was a caricature of the antics of college coaches.

The coaches, all football players for their alma mater, took the game seriously. James Rutherford, who played so fine in the line this season, wanted his Green team to win; so did Coach Jackie Williams, backfield star turned coach for the wearers of the White.

And when a decision didn't help their side, which was often, the protests of these coaches, joined with those of their assistants, were loud.

The referees were the most harassed of anyone, for the players, spectators and the coaches screamed their opinions at them.

For instance when one of the feminine players forgot the rules and tackled (supposedly it was a "touch game,") the referees penalized her side 15 yards. Bedlam followed every time.

Referee Stanley Strickland was exhausted at the game's end from just arguing. Not only did he have to blow his whistle when some hairpulling (as effective as a tackle) ensued, he had to frequently take time out to explain to each team who had the ball and why, which goal they were headed for, and why they "simply had to" line up for formation.

Actually, the ball players knew more about the game than their actions indicated. (Incidentally, there were more brunettes than blondes.) As blonde backfield ball carrier, Judy Robinson of the Green team, explained: "We're determined to win; so are they."

And everyone knows to beware of a determined woman.

"SHOOK UP"

Only casualty other than hoarse throats, was suffered by a brunette who proudly wore a Green No. 66 jersey. This petite belle had the wind knocked out of her, but she was so "furious" she ignored everyone's protests and went immediately back into action. She admitted she was "more shook up" because another brunette, No. 73, on the White team, had intercepted the ball a couple of plays earlier.

Actually, some of the passing was good. It would have been more spectacular if the girls on both sides hadn't become so excited when such a play clicked.

Pep talks from the coaches at half time went thusly: "Quit playing so rough; but if anyone gets rough, let her have it back."

Why didn't the majorettes and the cheerleaders want to repeat?

Well, they were boys. By game's end, they had wearied of being teased by their classmates.

Score of the game? Seven to zero, favor of the Whites.

"SUGARFOOT" VISITS

Actor Will Hutchins

'Showoff' Cowboy Carved Career From Favorite Boyhood Pastime

By BETTY CARROLLTON

An easy-going youth has carved a career from his favorite boyhood pastime: Showing off.

"I always liked to show off," drawled actor Will Hutchins, star of Warner Bros. TV series, Sugarfoot, during his recent visit to Atlanta.

"Now I'm getting paid for it," he added.

Although he seems too shy to ever be a showoff, Will's role of Sugarfoot is strictly in character for the affable lad, who once wanted to be a magician and who still performs feats of magic as a hobby. In fact, Sugarfoot was written especially for his talents.

"I play him easy-like," Will explained, "cause that's the way he is: a bungling tanglefoot, always putting his foot steadily into almost everything—except a stirrup." (Sugarfoot is equally adept at getting out of trouble. The role presents a series of contrasts that Will's acting skill must convey with conviction.)

Will's fondness for Western movies is shared by his mother, with whom he lives.

"She watches all of 'em," he said. "From Buck Jones and Tom Mix to Sugarfoot."

And "Mom is a pretty good critic." When the two are watching the filmed series, Will "gets the shakes" when his mother says "I couldn't understand that last word" or "You should have . . ."

"And she's usually right," he admitted.

Right now, Will and his mother live over a garage in Los Angeles. But with his career assured, the 25-year-old actor plans to buy a home in Hollywood, "out of the smog."

Since the success of the Sugarfoot series, which came on the heels of Will's triumphant performances on NBC's Matinee Theater, some changes have been made in the life of the likable lad, but "they're all for the better."

Will said veteran cowboy actor Bob Steele, who will appear in a Sugarfoot film soon, has been a big help to him careerwise.

"Bob gave me a lot of tips about riding, and about acting," Will said. "He's really been a big help."

The lanky young star of Sugarfoot has little free time, but he's a devotee of jazz, and has a large collection of records which he plays often. His favorite spectator sports are football and boxing.

There's plenty of corn in his life—from the color of his hair to his favorite foods:

Will had to dye his shock of unruly blond hair a bright corn-yellow to photograph better on TV; his favorite foods are corn pudding, corn casseroles and corn-on-the-cob.

Will's elongated frame, his mobile facial features, capable of creating an alternate wistful or rugged charm, his disarming boyish grin, bright blue eyes and warm smile form the pleasant portrait of a star that has captivated young and old TViewers alike.

His drawl stamps him as a native westerner (Will was born in Los Angeles) and the slow speech is an integral party of the easy-going, unhurried manner that characterizes his winsome appeal.

While he intends to "ride the series out and see what develops," there is another kind of role Will has always wanted to play:

"Everybody tells me I'm not the type for it," he admitted, "but I sure would like to play a gangster sometime."

RECORD ROUNDUP

Holiday Music Sets Merry Mood

All the festive, magical, wonderful tradition of Christmas has been captured on records by various vocal groups and singing stars to offer a melodious holiday setting for every home.

Among the most worthy, in addition to the standards by Crosby and Como, is "Christmas" with The La Falce Brothers, featuring pleasant voices in a cappella arrangement of the best-known carols, as well as a sprinkling of lesser-known traditional songs of other lands.

The family group—nine brothers — shows evidence of formal musical training in their fine rendition of Christmas music. Seasonal songs include "O Come All Ye Faithful," "Twelve Days of Christmas," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Joy to the World," "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" and "The First Noel."

The traditional English song, "I Saw Three Ships," is superbly performed, as is "Lullaby, Thou Little Tiny Child" and "O Come, O Come, Emanuel."

"Christmas Comes to Our House" with the best-loved songs as well as the favorite popular Yule hits in an artistically designed album of delightful new recordings courtesy of the Grand Award Collection.

The trees, stockings, fun and laughter, the Christmas prayers and happy visits from friends and relatives are all part of "Christmas Comes to Our House." Easy-listening arrangements of "Sleigh Ride," "Santa Claus Is Comin' To Town," "Let It Snow," "Winter Wonderland," "The Night Before Christmas" set a merry mood. A trio of beloved Christmas characters—"Frosty, the Snowman," "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Raindeer," "Jolly Old St. Nicholas"—make their annual visits in bright, sparkling arrangements.

The Frank Raye Singers go "Home for Christmas" with 20 favorite songs and carols, welcome gifts of holiday happiness. Frank Raye turns in fine solo performances with his renditions of "Joy To the World," "Noel, Noel," and "What Child Is This?" Frank teams with Nelson Starr for a fine version of "Silent Night." Solos by Harry Clarke, Carter Farris, Trudy Marlin are equally pleasing. Happy voices blend for "Jingle Bells," "We Wish You a Merry Christmas" and "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day."

The majesty of the birth of Christ is brought forth as The Sons of St. Francis sing songs of "Christmas in a Monastery." Probably the greatest of the collections of seasonal songs, "Christmas in a Monastery" brings the dramatic, yet tender and simple story of love and kindness that the world rejoices in musical proclamations, brought in Latin, English and Italian.

The beautiful message of peace to men of good will is brought in such songs as "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks By Night," "The Holy Mother Sings," "Nina-Nana," "Hodie Christus Natus Est," "A Gesu Bambino," "Ave Verum," and "Silent Night."

The multiple talents of Hank Sylvern have been employed to the fullest, with chimes and bells as complimentary effects to the organ, in a new holiday album, "Christmas in Hi-Fi." Hank gives a heart-warming, stimulating presentation of such time-honored songs as "Away in a Manger," "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "We Three Kings of Orient Are," "The Cherry Tree Carol," "The First Noel, "Deck the Hall," "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," and others.

Such albums will give listeners many Yuletide greetings for years to come.

Teens Say Christmas Spirit Is Lost

Fat, jolly, red-suited St. Nick with his bulging bag of toys has usurped the image of the Christ Child in the minds of most people.

This is the opinion of the majority of teen-agers who, in dozens of letters to The Constitution this week, said they thought teens had lost the true spirit of Christmas.

However, most of them felt it was not the fault of the young people and that they were not the only guilty ones. The increased commercialization has detracted from the deeper religious meaning, they said, and people devote more thought to the gifts they will receive than they do to the birthday of Christ.

Charlene Bennis, 14, Marietta, sums the subject up in this week's winning letter. Charlene, a ninth grader at Osborne High, writes:

Teen-agers have lost most of the real spirit of Christmas. When Christmas carols are sung, they are merely as an old tradition. When gifts are given, they are not thought of as symbols of gifts given to the Christ Child by the wise men, but mostly as the wanting of gifts and the obligation felt to give to those from whom they receive gifts.

Teens, I think, would much rather spend their Christmas mornings at home but are not satisfied to stay at home the whole day. They would rather spend their afternoon with a friend or friends.

The increased tempo of life today is responsible for some of the loss of Christmas spirit, writes Sara Alexander, a 10th grader at Union High in Blakely.

I believe that the shuffle of this modern age has caused many a teen-ager to lose the real spirit of Christmas. I regret to say there are only a few of us teen-agers who observe Christmas as it should be.

There are many who consider it old-fashioned to think of the birth of Christ on Christmas. Some of us teen-agers think that we won't be accepted in the social group.

Jane Gurganus, 15, a 10th grade student at Henry Grady High in Atlanta, writes that if the teen-agers have lost the Christmas spirit, it is not their fault.

When the stores put up decorations before Thanksgiving, and you have to listen to Christmas carols blended with sounds of traffic all day; the noise of the department stores; the radio and TV commercials on Christmas, commercialism cheapens the whole thing and the true meaning of Christmas is lost.

Other thoughts crowd out the religious aspects of Christmas, according to Anne Jeanes, 14, of College Park, who thinks that everyone, not just teens, have lost the Christmas spirit.

The tinsel and fun of Christmas pushes the true spirit to the back of their minds, she writes. Small children think of Christmas as a time when Santa Claus brings toys. Teen-agers think of Christmas as a holiday from school or a time for parties. Adults think of Christmas as a time to see old friends or a time when too much money is spent.

Edith Ann Schreck, 14, Atlanta, a Sacred Heart School student, points out that if young people don't understand or show the proper Christmas spirit, it's because they haven't had the proper religious training.

Priscilla Beaudry, 14, Atlanta, feels that Christ's birthday has become the mere ritual of exchanging gifts for most people.

All teen-agers think about on Christmas, she writes, is putting trees up in the living room and putting presents under them.

Teens' Phone Habits Blasted Too Much?

Are adults unfair in their criticism of teen-age telephone habits? Do today's young people really deserve the jokes hurled at them for spending so much time talking on the phone?

The Constitution will pay $10 to the high school student who writes the best letter on the subject, and $1 will be paid for each additional letter published. Address entries to Young Ideas Editor, include name, age, address, school and grade. Letters must be postmarked by midnight Tuesday, Dec. 10, and should not exceed 250 words.

Disaster Call Stopped Ham's Casual Gabbing

By ELIZABETH MORGAN

As death-packed debris settled down on shattered Villa Rica Thursday, Mrs. Juanita Farr and her sister were "just gabbing" over the phone in Atlanta.

That chat was to be the last casual gabbing Mrs. Farr did for 11 hours . . . the telephone operator broke into the conversation and asked if she would accept an urgent call. At 11:30 a.m. Mrs. Farr accepted the call from Jack Grantham, state communications coordinator for civil defense.

"There's been a helluva explosion at Villa Rica," he told the licensed amateur radio operator. He ordered Mrs. Farr to take charge of establishing and maintaining radio contact with the wounded little town.

ALTERNATE

At her home at 572 Wells Ave. in Hapeville, Mrs. Farr's ham radio station W4YEK is the alternate control station in the state civil defense setup. When no communications officer is available at the CD control center, Mrs. Farr takes over.

Mrs. Farr took over immediately after that Thursday phone call. At 11:45 she dispatched William F. Kennedy to Villa Rica as a "mobile" (an amateur radio operator who has a unit in his car). With CD clearance Mr. Kennedy sped through the State Patrol blocks on U.S. 78. At 12:35 p.m., when the mobile arrived, the blasted west Georgia town established its first radio contact with the intact world around.

Mr. Kennedy, chief engineer at Atlanta station WERD, went to work. With her orders from CD headquarters, Mrs. Farr had instructed him to report the list of injured and dead and to give her a complete picture of what had happened. On the Georgia state emergency frequency of 3.995 kilocycles, Mr. Kennedy reported the first identified victim, Oscar Hixon, at 12:40 p.m.

CHAIN

That report set up a chain of communications between the ham operators in Atlanta and Mr. Grantham which lasted until the station closed down operation at 10:30 p.m. Each report required Mrs. Farr to take off her earphones in the basement "hamshack" and telephone Mr. Grantham. Laughed tall, gray-eyed Mrs. Farr, "Jack was practically pulling his hair out, but he really took care of the situation."

And so, while the rescuers scrabbled frantically in Villa Rica, Mrs. Farr listened sharply at her radio set.

TELEPHONE RANG

The telephone rang constantly, of course, to bring queries from friends and strangers who knew how Mrs. Farr was spending her day.

For some reason, the Alabama Highway Patrol couldn't establish direct radio contact with the Georgia patrol to offer its assistance. So Mrs. Farr again became the liaison in giving the Alabama patrol instructions on routing eastbound traffic through Heflin, Bowdon and Carrollton to Atlanta.

The call that "touched the heart of the hardworking ham came early in the afternoon. "George," ham radio operator W4GET in Birmingham, put this request on the radio waves: "Can you get any information on Bobby Roberts? The boy's mother, Mrs. Couch, is here and plenty worried. He was due to be in the dentist's office at about the time the explosion went off."

But by the time Mr. Kennedy found the body of Bobby Roberts and reported it on the frequency which "George" was monitoring, his mother had left for Villa Rica to discover her loss for herself.

At 10:30 p.m. Mr. Grantham, by this time in Villa Rica, gave Mrs. Farr the order to "secure the net." She reported 12 dead, 16 injured—and turned in for a well-earned but restless night's sleep.

Scottish Rite Nurses Finally Get a Home

By YOLANDE GWIN

There is a beautiful new two-story white stucco building with red brick trim on Hill street in Decatur which public-spirited citizens have been building for the past 15 years.

It is the new nurses' home at Scottish Rite Hospital and this week the 24 nurses and the house mother, Mrs. E. B. Merritt, were getting all settled in their swanky new residence.

The "public-spirited citizens" are the thousands who have attended the annual Thanksgiving Day freshman football games for the benefit of the children at the hospital. A very small percentage of the gate receipts each year has been set aside to build the new home for the nurses.

TWO LIVING ROOMS

Beautifully furnished in traditional style, the lower floor has two large living rooms, a powder room and a large recreation room. Upstairs the bedrooms, as well as the house mother's sewing room, open into a long hall which runs the full length of the building.

Out there the other day the nurses were getting all settled in their rooms, adding personal touches here and there. All were thrilled over one of the new and beautiful features of each bedroom—the built-in dressing tables framed in ceiling-high chests of drawers.

There was Martha Warren with all her clothes plus stacks of boxes piled in the middle of the floor "trying to decide where to put everything," she said. Mrs. Jud Lanford and Mrs. Clara Dekle had placed their handmade bright-colored crocheted afghans on their beds —all rooms have twin beds.

CHINA FIGURINE

Mrs. D. H. Romefelt came by with a beautiful china figurine as a gift, she said, "for nurse Louise Hayes as a surprise in her room when she comes off duty." There was a parakeet singing away in the room occupied by Miss Joan Mouchett and Mrs. Eva Backstrom.

The new home has a large screened side porch which will be in constant use during the spring and summer months. There is a large recreation room, the walls splashed with paper showing scenes of the Montmarte section of Paris. At one end, blue accordion-style doors open to reveal a built-in snack bar.

There is a powder room with silver metallic wallpaper dotted with daisies, and a built-in dressing table topped in coral. The floor is pink tile.

LARGER ROOM

The larger of the two living rooms, at the front of the building, has mauve wall-to-wall carpeting. Two couches done in a blending tone of mauve silk grace two sides of the room, while one large wing chair in green is an attractive contrast to two fireside-style chairs done in colorful appliqued flowered linen. Embossed draperies have a soft pink tinge.

Opposite this room and across the entrance hall is a smaller reception room with wall-to-wall carpeting. A couch is upholstered in gray-green tones. The floor-length draperies are topped with cloth-covered cornices trimmed with sprays of gold leaf. There is a console with a mirror above it and several comfortable upholstered chairs.

But where did the nurses live before this elegant new building was given them? They lived in the two small cottages which first housed the patients when the hospital was established in 1915 by the Scottish Rite Masons. In a few years a larger building was erected and the original cottages were used for the nurses' home.

General Election Voting Broke Record by 55,625

Atlantans, responding to the heated mayoralty struggle staged by incumbent William Hartsfield and challenger Lester Maddox, broke the city's total-vote record for general elections by 55,625 ballots.

City Clerk Joe Richardson Friday said official tabulation of Wednesday's general election showed ballots were cast by 65,390 of the city's 124,627 registered voters.

Previous general election high occurred in 1953 when 9,765 voted as Ald. Lee Field unseated primary nominee Joe Allen.

Richardson's official count gave Mayor Hartsfield, victorious in his sixth-term bid, a total of 41,301 votes to the 24,089 piled up by restauranteur Maddox.

The Wednesday election was the second time in the past 12 years that Hartsfield had successfully repulsed a general election challenge. On the first occasion, he rolled up 5,433 votes to 1,007 for florist Edgar Schukraft.

The enthusiastic turnout outstriped even the most optimistic preelection forecasts, which ranged from guesses of 20,000 to 50,000 and were based chiefly on the fact that a record 73,495 had voted in the May 8 city primary.

The city clerk's final tally showed Hartsfield outpolled political novice Maddox in six of the city's eight wards, in addition to taking the absentee ballot box by a 226-40 count. The mayor gained his largest majorities in the third, fifth, sixth and eighth wards, all of them boasting heavy Negro populations.

Maddox took the second ward by a 545-vote margin and the fourth ward by 574 ballot. In the second ward, encompassing the East Lake and Kirkwood areas, Maddox drew 2,819 votes to his opponent's 2,274. In the third ward, covering the Stewart avenue-Capitol View-Lakewood sections, he attracted 4,585 ballot to Hartsfield's 4,011.

Thorough Study of Juvenile Homes Plan Should Be Launched, Judge Woolfolk Says

Juvenile Judge W. W. Woolfolk of Fulton County declared Friday he "heartily" endorses a state legislative committee's recommendation for establishing 20 well-staffed regional juvenile detention homes.

The judge said in a prepared statement, however, that the question of establishing a statewide system of courts to handle family difficulties "is a matter that will require a great deal of study."

The family courts—or district juvenile courts suggestion—would bring about a reorganization of some judicial systems, the judge explained.

Before this is undertaken, the judge continued, a committee composed of representatives of the Georgia Superior Court Judges Assn., the Juvenile Court Judges Assn. and the Georgia Bar Assn. should make a thorough study and draw any legislation they think is needed.

"A matter of such profound importance should not be hurriedly done but perhaps could be accomplished in time for their findings to be presented to the 1959 session of the Legislature," Judge Woolfolk stated.

Regarding the recommendation of the committee headed by Rep. Chappelle Mathews of Clarke County, Judge Woolfolk said there is "a recognized need for regional detention homes if the children of rural Georgia are to be given equal justice with those of urban counties which now provide detention facilities."

The judge, who is past president of the Georgia juvenile judges' organization, said these detention homes should serve "as a positive part of the treatment and rehabilitation process" of handling children who come before the courts.

"There has been some-natural criticism that detention homes are junior jails. This is not true where detention homes are properly staffed with trained personnel and where children are given spiritual guidance, psychotherapy, and taught to respect the rights of other people," he said.

Market Fizzles With Vanguard

Neither Get Off the Ground; Exchange Loses $1.2 Billion

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—The stock market declined today with part of the selling blamed on failure of the Vanguard test satellite project.

Leading steels, motors, metals, rails and oils retreated fractionally to about 1 point. There were losses in aircraft-missiles extending to about 2 points. A few stocks recorded wider declines.

Some issues in the rubber, radio-television and tobacco groups resisted selling and scored gains. The utilities also held up well.

Although the whole market retreated after the satellite failure, it had been lower prior to that disappointment. Based on the averages, the decline clipped all shares on the New York Stock Exchange.

Most of the day it was a rather quiet market, but this was not true when the satellite news broke. Selling hit the aircraft-missiles and the ticker tape ran 1 minute behind floor transactions briefly.

American Stock Exchange prices were mostly lower. International Petroleum lost ⅞ and New Jersey Zinc ⅝. Fairchild Camera gained ½. Volume totaled 640,000 shares compared with 530,000 yesterday.

Corporate bond advanced in active declines while U.S. Governments closed mixed.

VA Grants Okayed for Ga. Hospital

The Veterans Administration disclosed Friday that the state of Georgia will be reimbursed up to $700 a year for each mentally ill veteran cared for in a special home at Milledgeville State Hospital.

Veterans administrator H. V. Highley notified state officials of a ruling that the veterans home established at the Milledgeville hospital qualifies for such federal assistance.

The institution is eligible, Higley ruled, because it qualifies under an old 1888 statute that was enacted to help veterans of the War Between the States.

The amount of aid the state will receive will depend on the number of veterans in the Georgia institution but estimates range from $200,000 to $500,000 a year.

Higley's decision marked a victory for state veterans service director Pete Wheeler, who has been battling for more than a year to get VA funds for veterans cared for in the home for them at Milledgeville.

TV Viewer Saved From Home Fire

A hotel employe Friday rescued a woman television fan from her flaming home at 507 Pulliam St., SW, police said.

Ralph Dixon, of 1122 Briarcliff Pl., NE, an employe of the Briarcliff Hotel, was driving along Pulliam street when he noticed flames shooting out from a second-floor porch at 507 Pulliam street, Fire Inspector R. L. Parker said.

Quickly parking the car, Dixon raced upstairs and knocked at a locked door. No one responded. Dixon said he kicked the door open as wind-fanned flames were spreading rapidly over the top of the building.

Forcing open a second door, he found Mrs. W. P. Barge lying on the bed watching a television show. Mrs. Barge apparently was engrossed in the show and knew nothing of the fire, officers said.

Dixon helped Mrs. Barge to safety.

Parker and Ptl. C. O. Anderson and C. F. Giles said the two-alarm fire heavily damaged the second-floor apartment occupied by the Barge family. They added the first floor section occupied by the family of L. J. Reese was damaged by smoke and water.

Apparently the fire started on a second story porch, Parker said. He added the cause of the fire had not been determined.

'The Consul' Justifies Repeat Run

Academy Theater's repeat performance of "The Consul" drew a near-capacity crowd to the Fourth Street Theater Friday night and justified its rescheduling.

The production capably caught and sustained the tension of Menotti's opera, striking the cord of fear and frustration at the opening and never slackening until the hopeless ending in Magda's suicide.

The biting indictment of red-tape and official callousness — "Your name is a number . . . Your story's a case"—was ably presented by a strong cast. Patricia Calhoun as Magda Sorel, in particular, caught the audience by her passionate portrayal of the suffering mother.

Mae Lou Daye, as the Grandmother, came through a strong dramatic performance, as did Frank Witlow as John Sorel.

The supporting cast did a solid and capable job — particularly Martha Tanner as the bored, rountine-bewitched secretary. —ALLAN HEAD

A Rhyme a Day

"Woman asks divorce on grounds of non-support, claiming she has earned living for self and family except when babies were first born."—News Item.

Some men are born with the desire . . . or urge "to set the woods on fire" . . . while others just came for the ride . . . and are completely satisfied . . . with very little in this life . . . but, most always, they get a wife . . . with some ambition to progress . . . who earns enough to feed and dress . . . them both until she has to quit . . . because there is a little bit . . . of something, (what I mean to say) . . . is that the stork is on the way.

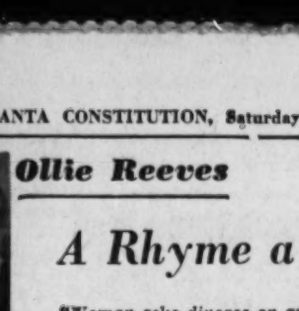

This forces him, against his will . . . to do a little work until . . . his wife is able to return . . . to her old job again and earn . . . their living as she did before . . . and then the old man works no more.

His wife and family would be . . . a whole lot better off if he . . . would go away and stay away . . . and give them all a holiday . . . and that includes his wife, of course . . . who shouldn't ask for a divorce . . . for there's a better way, I think . . . (Man, be careful what you drink.)

"We ought not to look back unless it is to derive useful lessons from past errors, and for the purpose of profiting by dear bought experience."
—Washington

Action is based on hard work, application and concentration of energies and knowledge.
